The Charlotte Medal in Copper

Believed to be the work of Thomas Barrett, a convict on the Charlotte, who engraved it while the ship was at anchor in Botany Bay in January 1788.

740*

Charlotte Medal, undated (1788), in copper (47mm; weight 10.5g) (C.1788/2)), engraved on both sides of a thin, crude copper disc, obverse engraved in cursive script, 'Sailed the / Charlotte in Co / from Spit head th 13 of / May Bound for Botany / Bay in the Island of new / holland arriv,d at Teneriff th / 4 of June 1787 in Lat 28" 13N / Long 16" 23 (holed) depart,d th 10 Do / arriv,d at Rio de Janeiro th 6 of / Augt in Lat 22" 54S Long 42" 38 W / depart,d th 5 of sepr and / arriv,d at the Cape of good / hope the 14 of Octr in / Lat 34" 29S Long 18" 29 East / depart,d the 14 of Novr / Made the south / Cape of new' and continues on reverse, 'Holland Jany / th 8 o(1 over f)788 in Lat 43'32 / s Long 146" 56E arriv,d / at Botany Bay th 20 of Jany / in Lat 34 South / Long 151 East distance / from great Britain Miles / 13106', reverse also decorated with sun, crescent moon and stars, below is signed W.B. (William Broughton - see footnote). Contemporary in style this medal was engraved by Thomas Barrett one of the convicts on board the first fleet ship, Charlotte, whilst she was anchored in Botany Bay between the 20th and 26th January, 1788. The medal and its silver counterpart are regarded as the first Australian Colonial works of art and icons of the foundation of our nation and as such are of immense historical interest to Australia. Holed in four places and several dents, otherwise good fine and unique.

$500,000

Ex Ian M.L.Armstrong OAM Collection and previously from Spink Australia Sale 7, 11 March 1982 (lot 438) and Christie, Manson & Woods Ltd Melbourne Sale in 1983.

The Charlotte was one of the six convict transport ships of the First Fleet. It had a complement of crew, marines (one captain, two lieutenants, two sergeants, three corporals, one drummer and thirty five privates) and convicts (eighty nine male and twenty female). The master was Captain Thomas Gilbert, and the Surgeon, John White who was later to be appointed the first Chief Surgeon of the Colony.

The First Fleet weighed anchor on 13th May, 1787, at the Motherbank in the Channel. And on its long voyage made stops at Teneriffe in The Canaries, Rio de Janeiro, and Cape Town before beginning the final leg of the voyage to Australia. The various ships arrived at Botany Bay from 18th to 20th January, 1788, with the Charlotte arriving on the latter date. The Fleet Commander, Captain Arthur Phillip, came ashore and decided that the location was unsuitable so after a six day period the Fleet was moved to Port Jackson on 26th January, 1788.

In early May, 1788 Charlotte under charter to The East India Company, sailed for China from whence she shipped a cargo of tea to England. She was then sold to a firm of London merchants, Bond & Co. and began the next stage of her career, the London to Jamaica run. Charlotte ended her career under the ownership of John Jones, a merchant in Quebec, Canada. In 1818 she was lost off Newfoundland.

In an article by Dr John M. Chapman, The Solution of the Charlotte Enigma, in the Journal of the Numismatic Association of Australia, Vol 9, pp 28-33, he gives a resolution to the mystery surrounding the copper Charlotte Medal that appeared for sale at Spink Australia's Auction in Sydney on 11 March 1982 (lot 438). It was discovered in the 1940s during a house renovation at Camden Town, New South Wales in the area where one William Broughton had a farm called Lachlan Vale.

To trace the copper medal one must return to the Charlotte's arrival. The ship's doctor, Surgeon John White, was a keen sketcher (Source: Marine Captain Watkin Tench, A Complete Account of Settlement at Port Jackson, London, 1793) and a collector of information as well as being a doctor. This is evidenced by the fact that he collected scores of specimens of flora and fauna during his early days in the colony and then sent back to England numerous engravings of plants, birds and animals for documentation in a book. Therefore it is logical that he would request that a memento be prepared to document such an important event as the arrival at Botany Bay. Hence he commissioned the silver Charlotte Medal created by Thomas Barrett. Barrett was known by White to be an adept engraver as he had already been caught out forging coins in company with some accomplices while the Charlotte was sailing between Teneriffe and Rio de Janeiro. White even recorded in his journal, 'The impression, milling, character, in a word, the whole was so imitatively executed that had their metal been a little better the fraud, I am convinced would have passed undetected.'

As Barrett was the only known engraver on board it would be natural for White to have him create the medal. But an important question is how did a convict get all the technical data recorded on the medal? Obviously it was supplied by someone, namely Surgeon John White, and he would also have supplied the silver disc, and the scalpel for engraving. During the six day waiting period from arrival at Botany Bay until disembarking at Port Jackson White's instructions would have been delivered by his personal servant on the voyage and that person was none other than William Broughton (WB). Dr Chapman surmises that Broughton has asked Barrett to create an abbreviated version of the Charlotte Medal for him in copper.

As Dr Chapman deduces, 'When transcribing from the silver medal to the copper piece, Barrett misread the date of Departing the Cape of Good Hope as 14 Nov, instead of the correct 13 Nov. (Possibly confusing it with the arrival date, 14 Oct. on the previous line). This mistake confirms that the copper piece was derived from the silver specimen.'

A month after arrival, Thomas Barrett, the engraver of both Charlotte Medals, was tried for stealing provisions and was hanged. So, not only was he the creator of the first medals in Australia he holds the dubious honour or should it be dishonour of being the first convict to be hanged in Australia.

The silver Charlotte Medal belonging to Surgeon John White, who returned to England, remained unknown until it appeared in the famous collection of the Marquess of Milford Haven, and is published in his catalogue of British Naval Medals published in 1919 (p465, No.49). Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge sold it on behalf of the Marquess in the same year to A.H. Baldwin of the London numismatic firm of Baldwin and Sons. Later it was sold to John J. Ford, a renowned American coin dealer. It was then acquired by Dr John Chapman when it was in Spink Australia's, Sydney sale in November, 1981 (lot 438). He disposed of it when he sold his outstanding collection in Noble Numismatics Sale 88 (lot 704) held in Melbourne in July, 2008 where it was purchased by the Australian National Maritime Museum and as it is such an important piece of Australian history it will never be sold.

The copper Charlotte Medal discovered at Camden has made its way from the ship to shore with William Broughton. He remained in Australia and in 1789 was appointed government storekeeper in Parramatta. In 1795 he was granted land which he named Chatham Farm. He transferred to Norfolk Island in 1800 and in 1805 was appointed Deputy Commissary in New South Wales. He had five children in an unmarried relationship with Elizabeth Hearthorn and in 1809 she and their youngest child, Betsey, sailed for England in the Boyd but unfortunately when it stopped en route at New Zealand she and most of the passengers were massacred however Betsey was unharmed. In 1809 William was appointed as a magistrate and in 1810 he married Elizabeth Charlotte Simpson a widow with whom he had five children. In 1811 he received a grant of 1,000 acres at Appin and established his family farm known as Lachlan Vale. He was promoted to Acting Assistant Commissary General in 1814 and was regarded as a trusted official in Governor Macquarie's government.

William Broughton died in 1821 at the age of 53. His wife Elizabeth remained at their farm until her death in 1843. Her daughter Elizabeth Broughton who had married in June 1839 also lived there with her husband, James Garland, until about 1855 when he moved to Sydney for a business arrangement. As Dr Chapman notes in his article, 'This farm provides the final piece of the Charlotte puzzle, as it is in this very area that the copper relic was stated to have been found in the 1940s. At some stage William Broughton had his initials scored on his souvenir, and the crude perforations of the metal suggest its probable use as a marker of some description at the farm, Lachlan Vale.' The fact that William Broughton had a farm in the very same area where the medal was found in the 1940s defies the odds of just being a coincidence and only reinforces the fact that the letters 'WB' indeed stand for William Broughton.

If the silver Charlotte Medal is one of the most significant and rare items associated with the First Fleet then the copper Charlotte Medal must rank as equal in rarity and significance and it also has a direct link to a person who had such a distinguished government career after arriving in the colonies.

In 1856 Julius Hogarth of the Sydney firm Hogarth & Erichsen, was commissioned to cut dies and strike medals - six gold, six silver and twelve bronze - for Major General (later Sir) Edward Macarthur, Lieutenant Governor of Victoria and eldest son of wool pioneer John Macarthur. Ludwig Becker, the German artist, who died five years later on the Burke & Wills expedition, had a hand in designing the medals. They were to be awarded 'for distinguished merit in the arts, either of peace or war'. James Macarthur of Camden arranged the whole transaction which cost £300. The motto in Latin reads 'either in war Victoria or in peace', the first motto of the colony. (Myatt & Hanley, Australian Coins, Notes & Medals, Sydney 1980, pp177-8).

A report in The Mercury (Hobart, Tas.) on Saturday 21 March 1936, p3 stated as follows.

The representative of Tasmanian philately at the international philatelic exhibition in New York, from May 9 to 17, will be Mr. P. Malone, the well known Hobart collector. Mr. Malone will leave on his trip to the United States on Thursday next, and will take with him his valuable collection of Tasmanian stamps. With the same collection Mr Malone has already won five gold medals - at the New York international exhibition in 1926, the Durban international exhibition in 1928, and at Australian exhibitions in Melbourne (1928 and 1934) and Sydney (1925).

An international exhibition is held periodically in the various important centres of the world. Representatives of almost every country in the world are expected to exhibit in New York in May. In addition to exhibiting, Mr. Malone will act as one of the representatives of Australian philately. He will be the only Tasmanian at the New York exhibition.

Mr. Malone, who is a specialist in Tasmanian stamps, has an almost complete collection from the first issue until 1911, when the Commonwealth issue was introduced. He has reconstructed plates of the first stamps issued in Van Diemen's Land, of 24 varieties. As far as he knows, there is only one other such plate in existence, in London. He has all other issues, both used and unused. A prize in his collection is the very rare Id Van Diemen's Land stamp, with error water mark double lined figure 2, in mint condition. This stamp was issued about 1869. The curator of the collection of the late King was very anxious to secure it for His Majesty's collection. Mr. Malone has added to his collection since he last exhibited in Melbourne, and it now comprises seven volumes, in which are about 5,000 stamps.

The Governor (Sir Ernest Clark) made a special request to see Mr. Malone's collection before it was taken to New York, and he had the opportunity to inspect it at Government House on Thursday afternoon, and was keenly interested in it.

Mr. Malone was presented by the members of the opening staff, Tattersall's, with a travelling rug, and wished success and bon voyage. Mr. Malone will join the Matson liner Monterey at Melbourne on March 28. He will be joined there by Mr. R. Sharples, of Adelaide, and they will represent Australian philately at the exhibition. Mr. Malone will be abroad about four months, and will return to Tasmania via London and the Suez Canal.

(Note:Reuben Sharples was President of the South Australian Centenary and Seventh Australasian Philatelic Exhibition.)

A follow up report in The Mercury (Hobart, Tas.) on Wednesday 1 July 1936, p6 stated as follows.

Mr. P. Malone, the well-known Tasmanian stamp collector, who is in America exhibiting one of the most valuable collections of Tasmanian stamps at the New York Stamp Exhibition, recently broadcast a radio talk over the Columbia broadcasting system.

Mr. Malone, who made a visit to a similar exhibition in South Africa in 1928, expressed the opinion, in a letter to a Tasmanian friend, that the New York Exhibition was unrivalled. It contained, he said, rare gems from all parts of the world. He said that he and his friend, Mr. Rueben Sharples, who accompanied him from Australia, had met with courtesy and a great welcome every where they had gone in America and considered that stamp collectors were a world-wide fraternity.
