$100

This is an interesting numismatic medal. Jos, Toribio Medina (21 October 1852 - 1930) was a Chilean bibliographer. He was born at Santiago, Chile, and was educated for the bar. His first publication, when a very young man, was a metrical translation of Longfellow's Evangeline. When twenty-two he was appointed secretary to the legation at Lima, Peru. After his return he published a history of Chilean literature (1878), and a work upon the aboriginal tribes (1884). In this latter year he was appointed secretary of legation in Spain, and availed himself of the opportunity of examining the treasures of the old Spanish libraries. These researches, repeated on subsequent visits to Spain, and also to France and England, enriched him with a mass of historical and bibliographical material. Among his publications may be mentioned the Biblioteca hispano-americana, a catalogue of all books and pamphlets relating to Spanish America printed in Spain; the Biblioteca hispano-chilena, a similar work, commenced in 1897; the standard and magnificent history of printing in the La Plata countries (1892); comprehensive works on the Inquisition in Chile, Peru and the Philippines; and the standard treatise on South American medals (1899) and several others on coins from South American countries. In addition, Medina produced the fullest bibliographies yet attainable of books printed at Lima, Mexico and Manila, and a number of memoirs and other minor writings. No other man had rendered anything like the same amount of service to the literary history and bibliography of the Spanish colonies.

Violent bushranger attacks near Melbourne during the 1840s and the Government's perceived inadequate response led to a civilian appeal for a stronger local armed presence. In 1854 Governor Sir Charles Hotham approved an Act to establish a volunteer corps not exceeding 2000 men with personally appointed officers. The Melbourne Volunteer Rifle Regiment, soon after known as the Victoria Volunteer Rifle Regiment, was the first unit formed under the new legislation.

This Stretcher Bearer went out time and time under a heavy artillery and machine gun barrage and very different conditions whilst the enemy were sniping Stretcher Bearers to rescue wounded comrades and showed absolute disregard for his personal safety. His skill and care saved many a man from death and his knowledge and principles of First Aid proved invaluable to those to whom in the course of duty it became his lot to tend.' Recommended for VC (citation): LG. On the 9th February 1900 Private Kruger of the 1st West Australian Mounted Infantry was a member of a patrol of 30 men ordered to hold an exposed position on an isolated hill at Slingersfontein. From 6 in the morning until 7 in the evening the patrol defied the Boers who surrounded and vastly out-numbered them. At about 10.00am in the morning Sergeant Hensman moved out to an exposed position on the right flank in an attempt to repel a party of Boers who were closing in on the outpost. He was badly wounded and collapsed with a shattered right thigh. Private Kruger immediately left his trench and, under heavy fire, bound up the Sergeant's wounds and built a stone parapet around him, the Boers then attempted to rush the position but Private Kruger killed four of them with rifle fire. Kruger was wounded in the hand and had his helmet and bandolier holed by enemy fire. When darkness fell the West Australians were able to infiltrate out through the Boer lines. Private Kruger refused medical assistance for himself and insisted on leading the Doctor and stretcher bearers back through the enemy lines to recover Sergeant Hensman. The General Officer commanding congratulated the 30 men on their courage and determination. Their stand against 300 Boers had entirely frustrated the enemy's attempt to turn the flank of the position. The position so magnificently defended was named 'West Australian Hill'.

The Australian Antarctic Expedition (1911-1914) was led by famed geologist Sir Douglas Mawson and set out to chart the virgin coastline between Cape Adare, due south of New Zealand and Gauss Berg, on the Indian Ocean. The Australian Association for the Advancement of Science approved and allocated a large share of funding for the exploration with the remainder apportioned from public subscription and government grants.

(Lot 3475)

The team mainly comprised leading university academics from Australia and New Zealand, including Percy Correll, a physicist from Adelaide. Sailing on the Newfoundland steam-powered Aurora, the team landed at Macquarie Island on 11 December 1911 and built winter quarters in Commonwealth Bay, where parts of the settlement remain to this day.

The treacherous and unforgiving conditions of the continent were demonstrated by the incident that occurred during a sledding trip on 13 December 1912. A concealed crevasse saw Belgrade Ninnis, six sleigh dogs and the majority of supplies plunge into the icy abyss. The survivors, Mawson, Xavier Mertz and six dogs, were forced to attempt to return to Main Base, a distance of over 300 miles with just 10 days rations. In fierce and freezing weather, Mawson, with blackening feet and verging on delirium, was the only member to return alive. Mertz had died on 8 January and the dogs were all killed for meat.

This NCO who belongs to the Transport Section daily took parties of pack horses into the heavily shelled area and each time reached his objective, with rations and water at times when water was very badly needed. He also conveyed two cooks up the road when it was being heavily shelled; he was unable to wait until the shelling ceased as the men forward were waiting for the hot rations. Another time during a very dark night and under very severe shelling one pair of horses dislodged the driver and bolted off towards the line. L/Cpl Scott dismounted and ran after them not knowing where they were going and discovered the horses and wagon in the custody of troops near the support lines. He returned to the dump an hour afterwards and delivered the rations'.

AFC.L.G.: 01Jan1949 'Light Lieutenant Palmer has flown a total of 2250 hours as a pilot in the Royal Australian Air Force. He has flown approximately 600 hours as a Service Flying Instructor and the remainder has been on Transport duties, including 500 hours as Captain of V.I.P. Dakotas. During the last six months he has flown 114 hours on V.I.P. duties. For the last eighteen months he has been employed on V.I.P. flying duties and has flown such personages as His Excellency, the Governor General of Australia, the Prime Minister of Australia, Cabinet Ministers and the Chiefs of the Navy and Army. At all times he has accomplished these flights with the utmost efficiency and has set a fine example for other members of the unit.

On July 18th, 1947, he was Captain and first pilot of a Dakota aircraft carrying a heavy load of freight on a flight from Amberley to Laverton. During the hours of darkness and whilst 100 miles from Laverton at 9000 feet the port engine developed an oil leak and the oil pressure began to fall rapidly. Flight Lieutenant Palmer endeavoured to feather the port airscrew but found that it would not feather. The aircraft began to lose height and the pilot decided to alter course for Essendon Aerodromw because hw was doubtful of being able to reach Laverton. At a height of 3000 feet the port engine seized and stopped rotating thereby increasing the rate of descent. The aircraft was at a height of 1500 feet when Essendon was reached but despite the difficult conditions the pilot, by his skill and coolness in the face of adversity, displayed expert judgement and airmanship and executed a single engine landing at night with no damage to the aircraft or injury to himself or his crew'.

MM.L.G.: 20Jan1944 'For outstanding gallantry and devotion to duty Aug '43. A. Coy 2/7 Aust Inf Bn in an advance against enemy positions on the Salamaua Komiatum track junction was caught in a defile with high ground on their flank and Francisco R on their left. Due to the intense fire and grenading they were subjected to the position became untenable and the Coy. was eventually forced to withdraw. Fighting that had continued throughout the afternoon had been heavy and close, dusk had fallen, secs had become isolated and the situation generally had become rather obscure. During the withdrawal the enemy launched a series of counter attacks from the right in an endeavour to cut off the Coy's line of withdrawal. Pte Bayliss, together with Pte Finn, both members of 8 Pl. A Coy. realising the seriousness of a breakthrough at this juncture decided to take up a position in an endeavour to stave off the attacks until the Coy had reached their new position. Dashing back to an amm. dump Pte Bayliss stuffed his shirt with grenades and with the words 'Its better that only two of us should go west than the whole Coy' ran back to the position taken up by Pte Finn. Despite the determined onslaught and overwhelming odds Pte Bayliss together with Pte Finn managed to hold off the enemy attack for over an hour, and only withdraw when Pte Finn had used all but ten rounds of his amm. and Bayliss himself thrown his last grenade. In this action Pte Bayliss displayed all the qualities of gallantry and devotion, worthy of the highest commendation and praise in the unselfish devotion he displayed towards his Coy'.
