Sir Alexander Gillies (26 September 1891-19 February 1982) was a New Zealand orthopaedic surgeon. He was born in Dunedin, New Zealand on 26 September 1891.

Sir Alexander was the Patron of the New Zealand Physical Education Society and the New Zealand Association of Health Physical Education and Recreation (the forerunners to PENZ) from 1936 until 1982. He was a noted orthopaedic surgeon in Wellington and gave time and energy to his links with physical education. This award is the most prestigious that PENZ can confer and it is awarded rarely for outstanding services of national or international significance to the profession.

Riley, Peter William Stewart (1910-1994)

Peter William Stewart Riley was born in Dunedin in 1910, the son of Professor F Radcliffe Riley, Professor of Obstetrics and Gynaecology. He was among the first day pupils at John McGlashan College when it opened in 1918 and was a prefect and a member of the school cricket and rugby teams. He entered the Otago Medical School and graduated in 1934. He was house surgeon at Dunedin Hospital. With a postgraduate scholarship he studied in Melbourne and London, becoming FRCS and MRCOG. He returned to Dunedin as resident surgical officer in the late 1930s.

During the war years Riley served with the 3rd New Zealand Division in the Solomon Islands with the rank of captain. On returning to Dunedin he decided to enter general practice, initially in Dunedin and after 1946 at Lauder in Central Otago. He worked for the Vincent Hospital Board covering a large, sparsely populated area. He was superintendent at Ranfurly Hospital for a period. In 1954 he returned to Dunedin and worked in general practice until 1980. He was a quiet, self-effacing man who always did his best for his patients.

He was a keen fly fisherman with a love of the Lake Hawea area where for a time his father owned Timaru Creek Station. He was proud of his association with McGlashan College.

His wife, Kathleen, died four years before him. He died on 13 April 1994, survived by three sons.

Dr E.R.Cooper was the first Director of the Dominion Physical Laboratory from 1939 to 1950. He subsequently held the position of Assistant Secretary (Physics and Engineering) of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research until his untimely death in 1952.

On the initiative of the Technical Advisory Committee of the Dominion Physical Laboratory, a fund was collected for the purpose of establishing an E.R.Cooper Medal, to be awarded every two years to the author of the best account of research work carried out in New Zealand in physics or engineering. In 1965, the Council of the Royal Society of New Zealand formally accepted responsibility for the administration of the Cooper Medal. The E.R.Cooper Memorial Fund was transferred to the Society by the Technical Advisory Committee of the Dominion Physical Laboratory in memory of the late Edmund Roy Cooper, to support the award of the medal and prize for the encouragement of scientific research in the fields of physics or engineering.

The MacDiarmid Young Scientists of the Year Awards are presented annually by the Foundation for Research, Science and Technology to celebrate the achievements of the country's top emerging researchers and scientists and raise the profile of science nationally.

The MacDiarmid Young Scientists of the Year Awards, in association with principal sponsor Fisher & Paykel Appliances, have been held annually since 2004 when the late Alan MacDiarmid, New Zealand's third Nobel laureate and our most prominent international scientist, agreed to a request from the Foundation to lend his name to the awards. But the Foundation's commitment to recognising and celebrating the work of New Zealand's top achieving young scientists and researchers goes back further - to 1999 when it held the inaugural FIRST Awards.

The MacDiarmid Young Scientists of the Year Awards are presented at a prestigious gala dinner held in Auckland each year. Over 400 of the key people in New Zealand's science and business sectors come together to celebrate the work of top scientists and scholars.

From 'The Press', 14th March 1911. Courtesy National Library of New Zealand - Papers Past.

"Lyttelton Navals - Old Members' Association Formed.

A largely-attended, and enthusiastic meeting of the past and present members of the Lyttelton Navals, which is now in process of transition into No. 1 Company, Garrison Artillery Territorials, was held last night in the Company's Orderly Room at Lyttelton, to consider the question of forming an Old Lyttelton Navals' Association. All the officers of the company were present, and Captain J.S.Gill. O.C., was voted to the chair.

The Chairman outlined the objects of the proposed association, which he stated would be to preserve the interests of the old corps. Captain Gill pointed out that the orderly room in which they were assembled was their own property, and contained much that was dear to the hearts of the old members, and brought back many memories. The association would preserve the historical records of the company, and the many photographs and trophies of old members, and one of its chief objects would be to foster the spirit of good comradeship which had always existed among the members of the corps.

It was unanimously decided to form an association, to be known as the Old Lyttelton Navals Association".
