$100

Starobielsk, Ostaszkow and Kosielski were Russian POW camps housing mainly Polish military officers, policemen and civilian prisoners. The Kosielski prisoners were massacred at Katyn forest in 1940 by the Soviet NKVD and simultaneous executions were held of prisoners from the other camps. Those murdered comprised many of Poland's elite and were the ones most likely to oppose the imposition of communism on Poland. Ironically on 10 April 2010 many of Poland's current elite, including the President Lech Kaczynski and the First Lady, were killed in an airline crash in the forests near Smolensk in Russia near the Belarus border while on their way to attend a remembrance ceremony for the Katyn victims. The disastrous event has been labelled Katyn 2. With research.

These Hunnic imitations of Sassanian coins are known from a small number of specimens and are rarely seen for sale. This example has completely corrupt Pahlavi letters on obverse and reverse, and probably from the slightly later period of c.600 A.D. The Hephthalites or White Huns were a Central Asian nomadic confederation whose precise origins and composition remain obscure. They were called Ephthalites by the Huns, and Hunas by the Indians. They were mentioned by the Chinese and they displaced the Scythians and conquered Sogdiana and Khorasan before 425. After that, they crossed the Syr Darya (Jaxartes) River and invaded Persia. In Persia, they were initially held off by Bahram Gur but later around A.D. 483-85, they succeeded in making Persia a tributary state. After a series of wars in the period around A.D. 503-513, they were driven out of Persia and were completely defeated in A.D. 557 by Khosru I though their polity came under the Gokturks thereafter. The White Huns also invaded the regions of Afghanistan and Pakistan and succeeded in extending their domain to include the Ganges Valley where this coin was made.

The issue is said to have been struck under authority of a certain Captain Scott of Tanjore after the British captured Negapatam in 1781. They thus became known as 'Scott's Pagoda' or Iskat-Pagoda. The obverse of the rude representation of a single standing deity is derived from the Negapatam issues of the Dutch struck after 1662, which in itself is derived from a Vijayanagar prototype. Pridmore did not recognise the type but is known in India as the Iskat-Pagoda. Scholten notes the fineness of these pagodas as 0.625 - 0.635. The Dr. Lawrence Brilliant specimen struck from same or very similar dies (lot 616) realised US$1,100 in Spink-Taisei Sale 9.

Ex Noble Numismatics Sale 89 (lot 4232) and previously from B.A. Seaby Ltd., and purchased by Captain Vivian Hewitt (1944). His collection was purchased by Spink & Son London 1967, and acquired 1973 by private purchase with ticket by Colin E. Pitchfork and sold in Noble Numismatics Sale 48 (lot 2025).

A total of 59,250 were struck. The issue was authorized in September 1817 and proclaimed current in December 1817 at a rate of 15 silver rupees for one gold rupee. Because the issue was identical in size weight and design to the silver rupees the gold issue was changed to new designs in 1819. Very few of these coins appear on the market, the Pridmore specimen in 1982 (mounted and VF), and the Dr. Brent specimen in 1991 (Spink Taisei Sale 9) are some specimens noted by the catalogue.
