Awarded Lloyd's Patriotic Sword for His Gallant Conduct Opposing Landung of French Forces at Dominica 1805

3969*

Lloyds Patriotic Fund Sword, and other items awarded to Sir Maurice Charles O'Connell.

First: Lloyds Patriotic Fund Sword, 31 1/2 inch hollow-ground blued and gilt blade etched design of flowers, foliage, trophies, figures of Britannia and of Victory, arms and cypher of George III and the presentation inscription, 'From The Patriotic Fund At Lloyds To Captain Maurice Chas. O'Connell Of/The 1st West India Regt For His Gallant Conduct Opposing The Landing Of The French/Forces At Dominica On 22nd Feby. 1805.', recorded in The London Gazette Of 7th May', stirrup hilt of ormolu, the quillons formed as fasces, the ancient Roman symbol of justice, and set on it is a rectangular panel bearing a gallery of flags, the knuckle-guard as a Hercules club entwined by a snake, the langets cast with acanthus foliage and naval trophies, the back-strap of the chequered ivory grip cast as the skin of the Nemean lion, in original scabbard of ormolu decorated with medallions cast with the Hydra, and with the Nemean lion, the top edge of the locket engraved, 'R.Teed/Dress Sword Maker/to the Patriotic Fund/Lancaster Court,/Strand. London'.

Second: Patriotic Fund bestowal document (36x26.5cm), dated 14th May 1805, to 'Capt M. C. O'Connell, 1st West India Regt, Dominica', this graphic and calligraphic document has at the bottom, 'Engraved by E.Scriven, Historical Engraver to H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, from a Drawing by R.K.Porter' and below the text it has, 'Written by G.Robinson, late of Christ's Hospital, London. Aged 16 Years.' It is of interest to note that this document records that O'Connell was presented with a £50 sword and a piece of plate of the value of one hundred pounds for 'Opposing the Landing of the French Forces at Dominica on 22nd Feby 1805'. The normal award was a sword or a piece of plate, NOT BOTH.

Third: A William IV mameluke hilt General Officer's Sword, Pattern 1831, 31 inch flat back blade etched with crowned cypher of William IV above crossed sword and baton, the cross piece of the gilt hilt also bearing crossed sword and baton in wreath, ivory grip, with expert contemporary repair plate and small piece missing from back edge, with plated scabbard. (This is the actual sword in the portrait of O'Connell.)

Fourth: Pair of Officers Pistols by Prosser, 1770-1820, 8 inch octagonal sighted smooth bore barrels marked with 'Prosser Charing Cross London' on top of the barrels, spur trigger guards with pineapple finials, trigger guards, barrel tangs and locks all engraved with stand of flags, pikes and Britannia's shield, signed lock plates with bolted hammers, ebony ram rods, saw handled checkered grips with flat engraved steel butt plates and silver escutcheons marked with O'Connell stag heads, original fitted Cedar Case, case contents: brass oil bottles, Dixon & sons Sheffield 3 compartment powder flask, ivory jar with spare nipple inside, cap tin, 2 bullet moulds, screw driver with ebony handle, O'Connell stag head crest on the lid of the case. The guns are in excellent condition, the case is in excellent condition.

Fifth: A pair of Officer's Epaulettes with flat straps with corded edge, sword and baton crossed and surmounted by a crown embroidered on the strap, in shaped metal container.

Sixth: The Royal Guelphic Order, Knight Commander Star (Military) in silver; another in bullion for sewing to jacket; and the neck badge; the three styles of the award are housed in a custom made case bearing the following details on the lid lining, 'George Knaver/Konigl.Hof.Gold u Silberarbeiter/Und Juwelier/Marktstrasse 492/in/Hannover'.

Seventh: A pair of colour photos (290x240mm) being copies of the portraits by William Nicholas (English 1807-1854) of Sir Maurice Charles Philip O'Connell and Lady O'Connell which now reside in the National Library.

Eighth: Three framed documents (290x240mm), outlining a brief history of Sir Maurice O'Connell and another in matching size being a colour photo of the original citation for the Lloyds Patriotic Fund Sword.

These items are of the greatest significance in Australia's colonial history, very fine - extremely fine, extremely rare and unique.

Ex Christies Melbourne Sale, 31 March 1998 (lots 411, 411A, 419, 422).

Sir Maurice Charles O'Connell, the elder (1768-1848) commander of forces and lieutenant-governor of New South Wales, was born in County Kerry, Ireland. He studied in Paris for the Roman Catholic priesthood while under the patronage of a relative, General Count Daniel O'Connell of the Irish Brigade serving in the French Army. He left this calling when his father arranged for his entry to a military school. In 1792 he was appointed a captain in the French emigre forces serving on the French frontier under the Duke of Brunswick. Then in October 1794, after the reconstitution of the Irish Brigade in the British Army, he was appointed captain in Count Daniel O'Connell's 4th Regiment. Approximately six years later he was appointed captain in the 1st West India Regiment, and saw service in Surinam, Grenada and Dominica. In January 1805 he was appointed brevet major and transferred to the 5th Regiment for service in the West Indies distinguishing himself at Roseau in Dominica in February 1805 when it was unsuccessfully attacked by greatly superior French forces. The House of Assembly thanked him for this distinguished service and made a presentation of a sword valued at one hundred guineas.

The committee of the Lloyds Patriotic Fund also expressed its appreciation by giving him a sword valued at fifty pounds and a plate valued at one hundred guineas. The Lloyd's Patriotic Fund had been established about three years earlier as a national subscription to receive funds from every level of society both in Great Britain and its colonies. The basic aim of the fund was to help the wounded and the dependants of those who died on war service however it also made presentation awards such as swords and silver vases to those officers whose courage, skill and seamanship had made victories possible. The swords fell into three categories, £30 swords, £50 swords, £100 swords and Trafalgar swords being a variation of the £100 design. After 1809 presentation awards ceased when the heavy toll of casualties meant that all available funds were being used to assist the wounded and dependants. During the short period of the awards, a total of sixty silver vases and one hundred and fifty presentation swords were awarded.

In 1806 O'Connell transferred to the 73rd Regiment attaining the rank of lieutenant colonel in May 1809. Shortly after, in December 1809, the 1st Battalion of the 73rd Regiment under the command of Lieutenant Colonel O'Connell arrived at Port Jackson in Sydney accompanying Governor Lachlan Macquarie. The next month Lieutenant Colonel O'Connell was commissioned lieutenant-governor. Almost immediately, O'Connell began courting Mary Putland, the widow of Lieutenant Putland and daughter of the despised former Governor William Bligh. After a short courtship, and despite Bligh refusing to endorse O'Connell's request to marry his daughter, the couple were married at Government House on 8 May 1810 and Bligh sailed for England four days later. Prior to the marriage, Macquarie had granted O'Connell 2,500 acres near Windsor. He named this property Riverston, and today it is the suburb of Riverstone. In the month after the wedding he also granted the new Mrs O'Connell 1,055 acres in the district of Evan which adjoined acreage she had already received at Frogmore from Governor King. She was now quite well-off, owning 3,000 acres, 7,000 head of cattle and an income of £400 per annum.

During Governor Macquarie's absence in Tasmania in the latter part of 1812 O'Connell administered government in New South Wales. As well as being the second-ranking officer in the Colony of New South Wales, O'Connell held down several other important positions. In May 1810 he was appointed trustee of the Female Orphan Institution and in August of the same year was steward of the racecourse. Other appointments include President of the Philanthropic Society in January 1814. By now, Mrs O'Connell's resentment against those who had ousted her father was causing considerable problems and embarrassment because she exercised great influence over her husband. Governor Macquarie determined the best course of action was to remove the problem so he arranged for the 73rd Regiment to be relieved and transferred it to Ceylon. O'Connell sailed with his regiment in March 1814 subsequently leading it in the war against the King of Kandy in 1815 and put down an uprising of the Kandians in 1817. In August 1819 he was promoted to colonel and in 1821 the regiment was recalled to Ireland. In July 1830 he was promoted to the rank of major general and in 1835 was knighted, being appointed Knight Commander of the Royal Guelphic Order (Military).

In December 1838 he returned to Sydney as the commander of forces in New South Wales with his son, Captain Maurice Charles O'Connell of the 73rd Regiment, as his military secretary. On arrival he was appointed to the Executive and Legislative Councils being the senior member and successor to the governorship. Less than a year later, in August 1839, Lady O'Connell once again created difficulties when she persuaded her husband to lodge several claims on behalf of the heirs to land granted to former Governor Admiral William Bligh including one for 105 acres at Parramatta that included the sites of The King's School, The Female Factory, the Roman Catholic school and chapel, and many houses. In February 1841 a settlement was reached whereby the daughter of Bligh surrendered her claim to the land at Parramatta but she and her husband were granted titles to other properties one of which was Camperdown, the site of the present suburb. Not long after they sold this for £25,000.

The O'Connells lived and entertained in lavish style at Tarmons, a two-story villa, on the site of the present-day St Vincents College in Victoria Street, Potts Point. In November 1841 O'Connell was appointed lieutenant general, in December 1842 appointed colonel of the 81st regiment and in January 1844 colonel of the 80th Regiment. In 1843-44 he was a nominated member of the partly-elected Legislative Council and in 1844 his name was at the top of the list of nineteen persons nominated for a colonial order of merit. When Governor George Gipps left office on 11 July 1846, Sir Maurice O'Connell was acting-governor of New South Wales from 12 July to 2 August until the arrival of Governor Charles Fitzroy who took over on 3 August. In 1847 he was succeeded as commander of the forces in New South Wales by Major General Edward Buckley Wynyard.

Sir Maurice was about to leave for England when he died suddenly at Darlinghurst on 25 May 1848. He was given a full military funeral. It was reported that, despite the inclemency of the weather, thousands on thousands attended the melancholy procession with guns firing from Fort Phillip at Benelong Point as the cortege of 150 carriages wended its way from Tarmons to the service held at St James' Church, which still stands today at the northern exit of St James train station. After the service the general's body was delivered to the Burial Ground in George Street. His wife Mary then left the colony returning to England where she lived at Gloucester until her death on 10 December 1864, aged 81. There is a memorial to the general at St James' Church.

O'Connell, Maurice Charles, I know that my redeemer liveth and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth. Job. XIX.24 Sacred to the memory of Lieut. Genl. Sir Maurice Charles O'Connell KCH Colonel of the 80th Regiment, Lieut. Governor of this Colony from 1810 to 1814; and Commander of the Forces from 1838 to 1847. He died May 25th 1848. "The ear that heard him blessed him and the eye that saw him gave witness to him: because he delivered the poor that cried, the fatherless, and him that had none to help him. The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon him: and he caused the widow's heart to sing for joy." Job 29th Chapr. 11, 12, 13 verses South wall No.62.

He is also commemorated with Sydney's O'Connell Street having been named in his honour. Sir Maurice's son, Sir Maurice Charles O'Connell, the younger (1812-1879) was born at Sydney in 1812. After a distinguished military career during which he fought with the British Legion in Spain and was created a knight in several Spanish orders, he went on to become prominent in Queensland politics. He was commandant of the local forces and on four occasions was acting-governor of Queensland. He was knighted in 1868. There is a monument to his memory at Toowong in Queensland. O'Connelltown, now absorbed into the larger adjoining suburb of Windsor, about three kilometres from Brisbane, was named in his honour. He left no male heir to carry on the family name.

Individual oil on canvas portraits of Sir Maurice O'Connell and his wife Lady Mary O'Connell are held by the National Library. Sir Maurice's portrait features him in uniform wearing the breast badge of Knight Commander of the Royal Guelphic Order (Military). In his right arm he is holding his regimental shako with its elaborate display of egret plumes and his left hand is resting on the General Officer's Sword offered here at item three.

One of the Earliest Known Colonial New South Wales Rifle Club Medals and Rare

4084*

Sydney Rifle Club, large entirely hand crafted medallion in silver (160.0g, 67mm) made from two smoothed silver discs with ornate floral surround with crossed rifles suspension mount and loop at top, manufactured by John Forrester, obverse gentleman in hat under a tree shooting rifle at a target in the distance, reverse inscribed 'Presented to/ Mr. John Carmichael/ by the/ Sydney Rifle Club/ being the Prize awarded to the/ best Shot in the 2nd Match/ on the 5th day of April 1847'. Very fine and excessively rare.

$7,000

Ex Len Barton, Sydney antique dealer in 1980.

A similar medal is depicted in Gullick's manuscript which is in the Mitchell Library. This medal published and illustrated on page 18 of 'The Target Rifle in Australia 1860-1900' by J.E. Corcoran, Sydney 1975.

On 25 December 1844 it was announced that the first Annual Match of Sydney Rifle Club for a prize of a rifle would be fired on 1 January 1845 at the club at Red House Farm, Five Dock. At the next annual match held on 1 January 1846 the first prize was once again a rifle, the second prize was a silver medal and third prize was a silver-mounted snuff box. This was the earliest known beginnings of the rifle club movement in Australia. Then at the competition fired for on 5 April 1847 at the shooting grounds behind the new military barracks at Paddington there were three medals awarded on the day and about thirty members of the club competed for the prize medals on offer.

According to the rules, every member was entitled to three shots for the first prize, being a silver medal value £3 5s. After a keen contest Mr. John Anderson, publican, of Penrith, was declared the winner, his three shots collectively being within seven and a half inches of the centre. Although the shooting for the first prize was good, that for the second prize (a silver medal value £2 5s) was better with Mr. John Carmichael, baker, York-street, having put in three balls, of which the distance from the centre taken collectively was only six and five-eighth inches. The third prize, being a medal value £1 5s, was won by Mr. William Aikenhead, publican, of the Emu Inn, corner of George and Bathurst-street. Members of the club, on their return to Sydney, assembled and dined in the Emu Inn.

The medals, which were manufactured by Mr. John Forrester, jeweller and watchmaker of George-street, were neat specimens of art, reflecting great credit on the workman. In 'Shooting Awards and Prize Medals to Australian Military Forces' by John O'Connor, Sydney 2002, p102-3, reference is made to the medal discs being made from Spanish eight reales. Accordingly, this medal is of great significance as an example of early colonial medal making and of great rarity as one of the earliest known rifle club medals.

The Jumbo SL was most likely presented to the public in 1976 and was definitely available in stores in 1977. It is a large watch on a substantial integrated bracelet and was available as an automatic as well as with a quartz ebauche. All are truly rare pieces. Because of its large case this watch is also affectionately referred to as the 'Tresor' (German for 'safe' or 'strong room'), or the 'Jumbo' or 'Fat' Ingenieur.

IWC sales figures show that these watches sold very poorly with only 534 of the automatic jumbos turning up in the sales records. Besides being a bit clunky, the Jumbo did not sell very well because of its high price and the fact that it was introduced during the peak of the 'quartz crisis'. IWC refers to the Jumbo as a 'cult watch', an apt description for a watch of which less than 1,000 were ever produced.

$350

The watch was originally made without a bow. It was made to be mounted in a plastic holder on the side of a military field wireless set. The all brass case was originally finished in black paint. G.S./W.T. means 'General Service/Wireless Telegraphy'. J.W.H./V stands for J.W.Hardie Co., a large and well known firm of jewelers. The 'V' means Victoria (Australia). The 'D/D' mark is the Australian Defence Department marking, which was applied to nearly everything from boots to helmets. The 15 jewel Swiss movement was made by Montilier.

ANTIQUe GOLD AND SILVER JEWELLERY

Rare Alfred Lorking Grape Vine and Vine Leaves Gold Bracelet Made at Sydney, NSW c1855

4175*

Australian made gold bracelet, c1855, attributed to Alfred Lorking, 165 George Street, Sydney, handcrafted in yellow gold (probably 15ct or 18ct, 27.1g), hollow shank, snap hinged with two further hinges at sides, head 40mm wide, band 10mm at base, 55mm inner measurement, delicate filigree design of a grape vine and vine leaves surrounding a central bunch of grapes in the form of seed pearls. Minor denting, tiny hole near bottom of grapes and possibly a small repair; otherwise intact and an extremely rare and exquisite piece of early colonial jewellery.

$25,000

Not much is known about Alfred Lorking (1825-1883) other than he was a jeweller active in Sydney c1853-59. He emigrated to Australia from Stratford, Great Britain in 1851.

The style of his work is very distinctive. A similar piece held by the Museum of Applied Arts and Sciences, Sydney is illustrated in 'Australian Jewellery, 19th and Early 20th Century' by Anne Schofield & Kevin Fahy, p219.

Lorking was reported as having made presentation pieces for the Honourable Mrs Keith Stewart, daughter of Governor Fitzroy on her departure from the colony in 1853. The label on the box of the Museum piece indicates Lorking at 165 George Street but at some stage he took over the business of T.Hale at 496 George Street. It would appear that in 1867 he was adjudged bankrupt. Very few sales of his work have been recorded in recent years.

Rare Late Victorian Goldfields' Handcrafted Gold Miner's Brooch 'Kalgoorlie'

4179*

Early Australian gold miner's brooch, c1890s, 'Kalgoorlie', handcrafted in gold (15ct, 18.5g, 65x40mm), gold pin-back. Extremely fine and rare, a splendid example of late Victorian goldfields' jewellery.

$15,000

In a case by W.Dunkling, 313-317 Bourke Street, Melbourne.

The gold jewellery created by local jewellers for miners and their families was usually ostentatious, often incorporating non-traditional emblems like the mining tools they used including buckets, picks, spades, shovels, sluices and pans.

In 2014 an 1890s-era Kalgoorlie goldfields' miner's brooch similar to this piece sold for $16,470 (including buyer's premium) at Bonhams, Sydney. This was three times its lower estimate.
