SPORTING & GENERAL MEDALS, BADGES & AWARDS (PART 6)

MISCELLANEOUS - NON-SPORTING (1856 - 1970)

2396*

Switzerland, Industrial Arts medal, struck in silver (35mm), by A.Bovy, top suspender with striped ribbon, reverse inscribed 'Prix/D'Horlogerie de/Geneve/Chs.Lezard/1856'. Very fine, in a contemporary fitted case.

$1,200

Charles Lezard was an early New Zealand Silversmith and an ex-Councillor of the City of Christchurch, he was born in London in 1838, where he was educated and apprenticed to the watchmakers and jewellers' trade in the Horological School at Geneva, serving for seven years. Mr Lezard landed at Port Chalmers from the ship "Oliver Cromwell," in 1862, and at once settled in Canterbury, establishing the business which he conducted in High Street. He was a member of No. 9 Company of Volunteers in the Canterbury Battalion from 1863 to 1868, and obtained the rank of Lieutenant. He was initiated in the Masonic Order in London, but was unattached in New Zealand. Mr Lezard was also an old member of the American Order of Oddfellows. He was married in 1865 to a daughter of Mr Jacob Schwartz, of Bavaria, and had two sons and eight daughters.

The seal is composed of the Royal Arms of Great Britain - the Lion and Unicorn with a crowned oval shield between them. They stand on a ribbon which probably said DIEU ET MON DROIT, but this is too worn to read now. (The piece probably grades Fine to Very Fine) The legend around the top is SECRETARY FOR CROWN LANDS and around the bottom is NEW ZEALAND. It has been holed at the top, and curiously, the punch which made the hole was square, since the reverse of the penny has a square hole and the obverse a round one with a raised edge. It is still possible to see V - - - T O R - - with the hole through ICT, and GRATIA in full at the bottom. Tantalisingly, outside the letters CRE of Secretary the digits of the original date almost appear, only sufficiently enough to say it was probably an 1853, 1855 or 1859 coin.

The reverse, which should have the seated Britannia has absolutely no vestige of anything - no lettering, nothing. There is ink or pencil graffiti on the back, but it is not legible, and cannot be connected with the front, in my opinion. There are two clamp marks on the rim where the piece was held in, probably, a vice, although why it needed a vice I do not know, given the total obliteration of the reverse.

When first I saw the piece on my computer I was not convinced that it was by Teutenberg, but now that I have handled it, and photographed it, I feel there is a very good likelihood that it is.

My curiosity regarding the title Secretary for Crown Lands took me to Google, where I discovered a series of articles in 'The New Zealand Railways Magazine' of May 1934, about Alfred Domett. Aucklanders will probably recognise the name Domett Avenue in Epsom. It seems that Domett emigrated from England to Nelson in 1842, was found to have some administrative ability and became Colonial Secretary for part of the North and all the South Island. He later became a Magistrate in Napier, then returned to Nelson where he was elected to the Provincial Council and then to the General Assembly. In 1862 Sir George Grey asked Domett to form a Ministry, and he was in office as Prime Minister for about a year, in 1863. On resigning in c1864, he was appointed Secretary for Crown Lands, and sat on the Legislative Council. This meant he wore two hats - a senior civil servant, and a member of the Legislature. In 1870 a disqualifying Act was passed preventing this - with a special clause exempting Alfred Domett. Teutenberg arrived in New Zealand in 1866, which is good timing. Domett returned to England in 1871 at 60 years of age, and was awarded the C.M.G. in 1880. He died in 1887. As a hobby he wrote poetry. One of his other 'leisure' activities while in New Zealand was to do the foundation work for what we now know as the General Assembly Library. Curiously, this unusual piece was found in Napier! (The magazine piece does not say where he was domiciled as Secretary).

We cannot say that this "trial" piece was for a seal for Alfred Domett, but we can say that there are circumstances which make it possible. It joins a group of pieces about which we know something and must guess other things. Keeps life interesting!

With research.

2397*

Secretary for Crown Lands, New Zealand, a uniface struck impression on a British Queen Victoria copper penny of 185(3), (36mm), pierced at top for suspension, possibly an ID tag or a trial piece, possibly the work of Anton Tuetenberg, Auckland (see note below). Very fine.

$1,500

From the pen of Jim Duncan, Auckland.

ANOTHER NEW TEUTENBERG PIECE ?

We'll probably never know, but there certainly is a good possibility that it is. The item is a copper (not bronze) penny of Victoria's reign, which has been used as a flan for a trial of an oval seal. The coin measures c36mm, and the seal measures 28 x 32mm, so it is a horizontal oval. (28mm was his favourite medal size!)

2398*
Cobb & Co.'s Telegraph Line of Royal Mail Coaches, c1865, ticket from Maungatawhiri Creek to Auckland, in the name of James Fenton, dated March (18?). Some foxing, otherwise very fine and excessively rare.

$1,000

The following courtesy National Library of New Zealand - Papers Past - from "Lyttelton Times" 7 June 1864:

"Messrs. Quick and Co., the proprietors of a new line of coaches to be started in Auckland under the title of Cobb's Telegraph line of coaches, give notice that on and after Wednesday the 25th instant, a six-horse coach will leave the booking office in Queen street, at six o'clock a.m. daily, for Otahuhu, Drury, and Queen's Redoubt, and that one will leave the Queen's Redoubt, at 10 a.m. daily, for Auckland. This will be a great assistance to the many who now have occasion to go to the Queen's Redoubt on their way further up the Waikato, and we hope to see their line extended to Rangiriri before long. A considerable addition to the present conveyances for passengers to Drury has long been wanted, and Messrs. Quick and Co.'s vehicles doubtless will find their services highly appreciated by all."

With further research indicating that James Fenton was deceased by 9 August 1865.

New Zealand Girls Friendly Society, c1890s, struck in bronze (33x21mm), no maker, ring top suspender broken off. Good fine and rare.

$250

The Girls' Friendly Society was started in New Zealand in 1883 by Lady Jervois. Initially its main aim was to provide support for girls immigrating to New Zealand. Society associates were to meet all ships and trains arriving in Wellington, welcome the girls, give them a cup of tea and find them a place to board until they were settled. Other activities included factory visits and instruction. Eventually other branches were started and buildings purchased to provide hostel accommodation for members.

2406

The Campbell and Ehrenfried Company, Ltd., Brewers, Bottlers and Cordial Manufacturers and General Merchants, were situated in Lower Queen Street and Elliot Street, Auckland. This company was the largest brewing business in the North Island, if not in New Zealand and was formed by the amalgamation of the firms of Messrs Brown, Campbell and Co., and Messrs Ehrenfried Bros. They were incorporated in May, 1897.

In 1915 Campbell & Ehrenfried merged with the Great Northern Brewery, which holds the Lion beer brand and in 1923 they joined the New Zealand Brewery consortium to fight against the prohibitionist movement.

The company is now part of Lion Nathan Limited.

The Terra Nova Expedition, officially the British Antarctic Expedition, was an expedition to Antarctica which took place between 1910 and 1913. It was led by Robert Falcon Scott and had various scientific and geographical objectives. Scott wished to continue the scientific work that he had begun when leading the Discovery Expedition to the Antarctic in 1901-04. He also wanted to be the first to reach the geographic South Pole. He and four companions attained the pole on 17 January 1912, where they found that the Norwegian team led by Roald Amundsen had preceded them by 34 days. Scott's entire party died on the return journey from the pole; some of their bodies, journals, and photographs were found by a search party eight months later.

The expedition, named after its supply ship, was a private venture, financed by public contributions augmented by a government grant. It had further backing from the Admiralty, which released experienced seamen to the expedition, and from the Royal Geographical Society. The expedition's team of scientists carried out a comprehensive scientific programme, while other parties explored Victoria Land and the Western Mountains. An attempted landing and exploration of King Edward VII Land was unsuccessful. A journey to Cape Crozier in June and July 1911 was the first extended sledging journey in the depths of the Antarctic winter.

For many years after his death, Scott's status as tragic hero was unchallenged, and few questions were asked about the causes of the disaster which overcame his polar party. In the final quarter of the 20th century the expedition came under closer scrutiny, and more critical views were expressed about its organization and management. The degree of Scott's personal culpability, and more recently, the culpability of certain expedition members, remain controversial.

The following courtesy National Library of New Zealand - Papers Past, from the Evening Star, 16 August 1917:

"DRAINAGE BOARD

The ordinary meeting of the Drainage Board was held yesterday afternoon, and attended by Messrs J.J.Clark (chairman), Wilson, Small, Lunn, Kilpatrick, Sincock, Black, Taverner, and Scurr.

THE LATE CHAIRMAN.

The Chairman presented Mr H.E.Moller, the last chairman of the board as formerly constituted, with a vellum copy of the minutes of the final meeting of the late board. The resolution recorded in the board's minute conveyed to Mr Moller their appreciation of his splendid work on behalf of the ratepayers. The Chairman said they regretted the loss of Mr Moller as a member of the board. He had hoped personally that Mr Moller's health would have sufficiently recovered to have permitted him standing for a seat in the City Council. Mr Moller was a loyal and true friend, and a good public servant. He hoped, that the time was not far distant when he would take a foremost part in public affairs. Mr Moller in returning thanks, referred to the excellent staff that the Drainage Board had had. Taking Mr Foote, their secretary, for an example, he was an officer who stood on his own. He started in board's service as a boy, and eventually became their chief executive officer - a record hard to beat."

Mr Moller was later Mayor of West Harbour, retiring from that position in October 1927.

Sir John Robert McKenzie was one of seven children of Scottish immigrants. John was born in Melbourne, Australia in 1876. His father was a customs officer. After leaving school at 13 and working odd jobs for some years, he enlisted in the Victoria Bushmen's Regiment when the Boer War broke out in 1899. He served nearly two years in South Africa and was invalided home in 1901.

In 1905, he set up a 'fancy goods' shop with his sister Ella in Collingwood Melbourne. The business was so successful that a second store was opened within a year. The Melbourne shops were sold to a competitor, and the pair established businesses in Tasmania and Sydney. After a holiday to New Zealand in 1909, John transferred his business there the following year. The first McKenzies store was opened in Dunedin and the business grew rapidly.

By 1980, when the business was taken over, there were 75 stores and 1800 staff; McKenzies was a household name throughout New Zealand.

In 1949 John McKenzie was recognised for his contribution to public welfare when he was made a Knight of the Order of the British Empire. Sir John died in 1955.

Ewen Martin Wainscott (1920-1987) joined the Auckland City Council in 1947, shortly after qualifying, and was Auckland Chief City Architect for 37 years from 1967 until 1985. Few Aucklanders have heard of him and yet his legacy is an enduring one: rigorous, elegant modernist buildings, often for the most prosaic of purposes. Wainscott drew his design from US tank factories, which he visited earlier in the 1960s.
