Edward Wilson (1813-1878), journalist and philanthropist, born in London on 3 November 1813, son of a linen merchant. A failed business venture dissipated his inheritance and savings and in August 1841 he sailed for Sydney to try sheep farming. He soon moved to Melbourne and became interested in politics, agriculture and newspapers. In 1848 he bought the 'Argus' for £300. He aired his political views through his paper and provided influential opposition to the La Trobe government. Wilson retired in 1855 and developed an interest in the introduction of European birds, fish and animals. In February 1861 he formed the Acclimatization Society as an offshoot of the Victorian Zoological Society and similar societies in the other colonies and throughout Victoria were founded through his influence and involvement. He continued to be active in public affairs until his death on 10 January 1878.

Mrs Ann Timbrell began the breeding of silkworms and the production of silk in Collingwood, Vic, in 1860 with thirteen silkworms of the Bombyx mori species. In 1864 the Board of Agriculture purchased all her exhibits of silk and awarded her a bonus of £20 in recognition of her introduction of a novel industry. She exhibited at the Intercolonial Exhibition of 1866-7 and at the Dublin Exhibition where she was awarded a medal.

He was a commissioner for the London International Exhibition in 1862, honorary secretary and treasurer of the Australian Association. In 1868 he was a founder and vice-president of the Colonial Society (Royal Colonial Institute), London and from February 1888 to October the same year acted as agent-general for Tasmania, before his death in Clapham on 5 June 1904. Youl is famed for the introduction of trout and salmon to Australasian waters. In January 1874 the 'Norfolk' left England carrying 100,000 salmon and trout ova, delivering them to Tasmanian hatcheries on the River Plenty successfully for the first time. Youl was awarded a gold medal for salmon by the French Acclimatization Society in 1869.

Sir Samuel Wilson (1832-1895), pastoralist and politician, born at Ballycloughan, County Antrim, Ireland on 7 February 1832. Migrating to Victoria in 1852, he purchased Longerenong Station at the junction of the Wimmera River and Yarriambiack Creek where he created a system of dams and channels. By 1879 he held vast holdings of land in Victoria and New South Wales as well as leasing land in New South Wales and Queensland. Wilson established breeding ponds for English trout near Burrumbeet, and supported the work of the Acclimatisation Society by experimenting with ostrich farming and the breeding of angora goats. He represented the Wimmera in the Legislative Assembly in 1861-64 and the Western Province in the Legislative Council 1875-1881. In 1874 he gifted £30,000 to the University of Melbourne to build the gothic Wilson Hall. Knighted in 1875 he retired to England in 1881 and died in London on 11 June 1895.

Alfred Gollin who was born at Liverpool in England on 29 May 1861 was a London businessman. He first came to Australia in 1899 and was a member of the firm of Gollin & Co, merchants and importers, established in Adelaide in the 1870s and moved to Melbourne in 1889. The firm also opened an office in London in 1902 and had a branch in Wellington, New Zealand. The directors of the company were five members of the Gollin family. The building site at 561-571 Bourke Street, Melbourne is a listed heritage location. On part of this site at 561-563 is the five-storey building constructed in 1902 in the Edwardian style for Gollin and Co as their offices and showroom.

In his lifetime Alfred travelled a million miles by sea and made at least thirty round trips between England and Australia. His first trip to Australia was made in 1899. During his time in Victoria, Mr Gollin, a keen sailor, was elected Commodore of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club. In the season 1901-1902 he had outstanding success with his yacht 'Uira' winning the Royal Yacht Club of Victoria season trophy awarded to the most successful competitor. Towards the end of 1901 he travelled to England. On his return to Australia he said that he had received a hearty welcome as an 'Australian yachtsman' and was elected to that exclusive institution, the Royal Thames Yacht Club.

In about 1902-1903 Alfred Gollin purchased a large yacht called 'Sayonara'. Designed as a fast cruising yawl with high bulwarks and a graceful sheerline, the yacht originally was an instant success in the waters of Port Phillip. However the rug was pulled from under her original owner in 1898 when the various clubs made a decision to limit the size of yachts entering important races and regattas. This decision only affected Sayonara and one other competitor. After Mr Gollin purchased Sayonara he spent a considerable amount of money to make her race ready and then tried to stimulate interest in an intercolonial challenge with New South Wales (NSW) by issuing a challenge to the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron and the Royal Prince Alfred Yacht Club. At first there was no interest from NSW but finally the challenge was accepted by MR H.Binney of the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron. Mr Binney's Auckland designed and built yacht 'Bona' had the reputation of not been beaten. Alfred Gollin donated a trophy worth one hundred guineas for the three race series.

Gollin and his crew sailed Sayonara from her moorings at St Kilda to Sydney, taking thirteen days to arrive. The race series was held in January 1904 with Sayonara winning the first and last race thus securing victory over Bona and taking the trophy. Alfred Gollin then offered the cup as a perpetual trophy to be called, 'The Sayonara Perpetual Challenge Trophy' for competition between Victoria and NSW. Sayonara won the challenge again in 1907 and in 1909 and is regarded as a legend in yachting circles.

Conducted along similar lines to the America's Cup, the Sayonara Cup became the pinnacle of yacht racing in the first half of the 20th century. In 1950 the deed of gift was amended to allow a challenge from the Royal Yacht Club of Tasmania. The Sayonara Cup is still contested today although by a different class of boat.

After winning the Interstate Challenge, Alfred Gollin sold Sayonara and later returned to England. In August 1914 he joined the Metropolitan Special Constabulary in London. In October of the same year he was appointed to command Y Division. He resigned the command in 1919. For his services he was appointed MBE 1918, OBE 1919 and CBE 1920. A resident of Knightsbridge, he was a member of The Worshipful Company of Gardeners, Freeman of the City of London and Fellow of The Royal Institution.

He retired from all work in 1934 and it was reported in 31 December 1934 issue of the Brisbane newspaper, The Courier Mail, that Alfred Gollin was a passenger on the P&O liner, Maloja, making his thirtieth round trip to Australia.

Citation: George Watt Dempster - residing at 10 Kardima Road, Mosman. At about 9.30am on 19th October, 1939, Dempster was a passenger on the Sydney Ferries steamer "Kosciusko" from Clifton Gardens to Sydney. He saw a girl fall overboard from the Manly Ferry "Dee Why" on the passage from Manly to Sydney. A lifebelt was thrown to her, which she grasped, but as she appeared to be in difficulties Mr Dempster dived overboard, swam to the girl, and subsequently brought her to the ferry, where she was lifted on board.

$5,000

This coin was collected by Karl Gunnar Strom, a native of the Swedish Island of Aland, who jumped ship in Sydney in February 1923. Being an illegal immigrant he headed up the coast to north Queensland with a fellow deserter intent on stowing away on a ship headed for the US. The pair went cane cutting but with the onset of the Depression Strom headed south in early 1930, eventually settling in Slacky Flat near Bulli.

The graffiti was done in all probability as acknowledgement of the Castlemaine Brewery Company adopting the (four) XXXX brand in 1924.
