AUSTRALIAN HISTORICAL MEDALS

671*

George III, cartwheel twopence, 1797 (S.3776), engraved around edge 'Emma.Mary.Durieu.Born 10 March 1819'. An interesting birth memento for a colonist to South Australia, very fine.

$300

Emma Mary Durieu was born at London, England on 10 March 1819 to French émigrés. The Durieu family left for Australia on board the barque, Planter, which left St Katherine Docks, London on 23 November 1838. Also on board was Daniel Crosby, a 27-year old who had been a member of Robert Peel's Metropolitan Police Force in London. Mary's mother, Lucy Durieu, died during the voyage and was buried at sea near Cape Town. One of the passengers wrote in his diary that during the voyage there was much misbehaviour by his fellow passengers including drinking, fighting and open promiscuity with a lack of control by the ship's master, Captain James Beazley. There was also poor navigation that resulted in a mutiny by the sailors off Rio de Janeiro. Finally on 16 May 1839 the Planter, carrying the 20-year old seamstress, Emma Durieu, made its way into the Port River at Adelaide carrying a new group of colonists into South Australia.

After arrival, Daniel Crosby joined the Adelaide Police Force, soon being appointed Sergeant. On 22 June 1840, he and Emma Durieu were married at Adelaide High Trinity Church, she being given away by her father Mr Henry Joseph Durieu, Inspector of Arms to the province. In 1842 Henry was investigated for alleged irregularities with regard to his job and subsequently quit his residence and took a party of convicts to Tasmania. He remained there and in July 1843 he was appointed Inspector of Stock, Poundkeeper, and Inspector of Weights and Measures for the District of Bothwell, in March 1844 for the District of Richmond and in March 1845 for the District of Campbelltown. Meanwhile, Daniel left the police force and started his own security company. Later the family moved to Wallaroo where he became a carter for the mines and had a store.

Daniel and Emma had six daughters and four sons. One son, Arthur Durieu Crosby aged one year and five months died on 31 January 1864 of scarlet fever. Then on 12 April 1864, the third and youngest surviving son, John Crosby, aged seven years and nine months died at Wallaroo Bay of disease of the lungs and dropsy. The family seemed plagued by bad luck as her daughter Emma's husband of two and a half years, Daniel Vawser aged 24 years died of bronchitis and concussion on 4 September 1865 at Wallaroo. Daniel Crosby, who had achieved much fame in the colony as a lecturer on English history and a poet, died on 5 February 1881 at Moonta and his wife, Emma Mary Durieu, died at the age of 66 at Port Wallaroo, South Australia on 29 October 1885.

Edward Wilson (1813-1878), journalist and philanthropist, born in London on 3 November 1813, son of a linen merchant. A failed business venture dissipated his inheritance and savings and in August 1841 he sailed for Sydney to try sheep farming. He soon moved to Melbourne and became interested in politics, agriculture and newspapers. In 1848 he bought the 'Argus' for £300. He aired his political views through his paper and provided influential opposition to the La Trobe government. Wilson retired in 1855 and developed an interest in the introduction of European birds, fish and animals. In February 1861 he formed the Acclimatization Society as an offshoot of the Victorian Zoological Society and similar societies in the other colonies and throughout Victoria were founded through his influence and involvement. He continued to be active in public affairs until his death on 10 January 1878.

Sir Samuel Wilson (1832-1895), pastoralist and politician, born at Ballycloughan, County Antrim, Ireland on 7 February 1832. Migrating to Victoria in 1852, he purchased Longerenong Station at the junction of the Wimmera River and Yarriambiack Creek where he created a system of dams and channels. By 1879 he held vast holdings of land in Victoria and New South Wales as well as leasing land in New South Wales and Queensland. Wilson established breeding ponds for English trout near Burrumbeet, and supported the work of the Acclimatization Society by experimenting with ostrich farming and the breeding of angora goats. He represented the Wimmera in the Legislative Assembly in 1861-64 and the Western Province in the Legislative Council 1875-1881. In 1874 he gifted £30,000 to the University of Melbourne to build the gothic Wilson Hall. Knighted in 1875 he retired to England in 1881 and died in London on 11 June 1895.

Julian Edmund Tenison-Woods (1832-1889), Catholic priest, educationalist and scientist. He was born on 15 November 1832 at West Square, London. Educated in England he later continued his studies at Marist seminaries in Toulon, France. In 1854 Tenison-Woods met Bishop R.W.Wilson in England and accompanied him to Van Diemen's Land arriving on the Bernicia on 30 January 1855. After a disagreement with the Bishop he left for Adelaide where he worked as sub-editor of the Adelaide Times before entering Jesuit college at Sevenhill. After being ordained in 1857 he took charge of a parish at Penola. His first book on Geological Observations in South Australia was published in 1862. With Mother Mary McKillop he helped found the Sisters of St Joseph of the Sacred Heart in Penola in 1866. Over the next few years he conducted missions and retreats in NSW, Tasmania and Queensland. During this time he also wrote for various religious publications and contributed scientific articles to leading Australian newspapers as well as publishing books. His book on 'Fish and Fisheries of New South Wales' (Sydney 1883) won the medaille d'or at the International Colonial & Export Trade Exhibition in Amsterdam in 1883 and he was awarded the Royal Society of NSW Clarke Medal for his work in natural history. Tenison-Woods died in Sydney on 7 October 1889 and was buried in Waverley Cemetery.
