Together with some research and newspaper clipping including a report from a Warrnambool newspaper 'A Deserter Pardoned. Warrnambool, Monday. A member of the Victorian Permanent Artillery, named J.H.Kortright, was arrested here some time ago on a charge of deserting from the defence forces in 1901. At the time of his arrest, the offender explained that he deserted because he desired to take part in the South Africa war and could see no other way by which he could succeed in getting to the front. On arrival in South Africa he joined the Scottish Horse, and was present at several battles. He was subsequently appointed to the charge of the remount depot of the Scottish Horse and at the time of his discharge was presented with testimonials of which any soldier might be proud. On returning to Victoria at the close of the war, he came to Warrnambool, where he has relatives residing, and at the time of his arrest was working on a farm. Major General Sir Edward Hutton, Officer Commanding the Commonwealth Forces, has had the case before him, and having regard to the patriotic spirit by which the man was actuated, together with the excellent testimonials he received from the military authorities in South Africa, has recommended that a should be given a free pardon. Word has now been received that this recommendation has been endorsed by the Governor-General and Kortright has accordingly regained his liberty'.

During the Dernancourt operations from 27.3.18 to 6.4.18 he displayed admirable courage and great devotion to duty under shell fire. During the operations which commenced on August 8th he has shown marked ability in controlling traffic under trying circumstances, which roads were being heavily shelled. On two occasions this N.C.O. has taken post in a village being heavily shelled and diverted all traffic around the same, thereby enabling transportation of ammunition and supplies to be carried forward safely, without delay, and possibly saving the lives of his comrades. Pte Arthur Ernest Guyatt. Enl.05Jul1915. MSM for Gallantry: LG. 26May1917, CG. 11Oct1917. 'On the afternoon of 6th April 1917 Private Fahy, who was one of the party engaged on salvage operations at Quarry was seen by the others to throw up his arms and disappear in the ground. On running over, Privates Catherwood and Guyatt found that Fahy had broken through a thin crust of ground into a hole about 12 feet deep. He called out to them that he was being gassed. A rope was hastily brought out but by this time Fahy was unconscious not having been able to put on the respirator that was thrown down to him. Private Catherwood, fastening a wire around his chest, went down, but before he could get the rope around Fahy he himself was overcome and had to be hauled up. Private Fahy died without recovering consciousness, although he was taken at once to the Field Ambulance close by and oxygen administered. The Doctor's certificate put death down as due to mine gas poisoning. Private Catherwood was off duty for two days from the effects of the gas and Private Guyatt was also affected and unfit for duty the following day. The gas helmets and respirators afford no protection against mine gas. The danger of rescue work was made greater owing to the peculiar shape of the hole, the top and sides of which were liable to fall in at any time and bury those in the bottom'. With research.

courage and ability to retain his balance and judgement under most adverse and disconcerting circumstances, were wholly responsible for saving his aircraft, crew and passengers from certain disaster. At Iwakuni on 27th October 1947, Warrant Officer Peel, in very bad weather conditions called upon G.C.A. for assistance to land. Visibility was zero and the wind wa of gale strength. After two unsuccessful attempts to and by G.C.A. procedure, he was instructed to climb back to holding altitude. On the third approach, Warrant Officer Peel, due to his tenacity and skill, saved the aircraft and its complement from certain disaster. The Officer in charge of G.C.A. gave an incorrect instruction of final approach and only due to Peel's presence of mind was the aircraft prevented from flying into the sea. Carrying on, and using hsi own judgement, Warrant Officer Peel successfully avoided a sea wall and high tension cables to make a safe landing. A second incident occurred at Okinawa on 16th October 1947, in conditions of low visibility, torrential rain and in a winf of gale strength again necessitating a landing by G.C.A. procedure. However, on this occasion, the aircraft had to land downwind because the G.C.A. equipment at that time operated in only one direction. Warrant Officer Peel had no option other than to attempt to land, as his aircraft had insufficient fuel to reach the nearest alternative airfield, which was in China. He landed safely, a feat which won unstinted praise from members of the U.S.A.A.F. who witnessed it and appreciated that Peel's courage and cool-headed skill alone saved his aircraft and complement from disaster. During his flying career Warrant Officer Peel has flown more than 1600 hours, 340 of which have been flown in the last six months. Throughout his flying he has shown exceptional ability, a deep sense of responsibility, and a fearless courage, which qualify him for a wide and generous recognition'.
