BRITISH SINGLES

4359*
Military General Service Medal 1793-1814, (VR) - nine bars - Fuentes D'Onor, Ciudad Rodrigo, Badajoz, Salamanca, Vittoria, Pyrenees, Nivelle, Orthes, Toulouse. Joshua White, 5th Foot. Impressed in serif capitals. A few very minor edge nicks, original ribbon, lovely toning and nearly extremely fine, with original cardboard box of issue and as such rare.

$5,000

Joshua White, labourer, served with the 5th Foot (Northumberland Foot) from 5 March 1808 to 24 March 1815 and then, while serving at Quebec in Canada, he transferred to the 103rd Regiment of Foot. Only 39 bars for Fuentes D'Onor awarded to 5th Foot and is the scarcest bar to the unit. The Duke of Wellington referred to the 5th Foot as 'The ever-fighting, often tired, but never-failing fifth'. They were also referred to as 'Wellington's Bodyguard' because he always liked them to be close at hand. Another of the unit's nicknames is 'The Fighting Fifth'. Together with a photocopy of Joshua White's Discharge Certificate from the 103rd Regiment of Foot and other research material on the 5th Foot.

$2,500

LG 26/6/1945, Citation: This officer was pilot and captain in an aircraft detailed to attack Berchtesgaden on the night of 25th April, 1945. On the outward flight the port engine became troublesome and had to be put out of action. Despite the loss of engine power, Pilot Officer Knight flew on. High mountains had to be crossed but the target was reached. In the face of much anti-aircraft fire a successful attack was executed. Soon after leaving the target the starboard outer engine failed. The propellor had to be feathered. Even so Pilot Officer Knight flew the damaged aircraft to base. He set a splendid example of skill, courage and determination throughout.

Together with identity disc for L Knight / Offr / C.E. / 191091 / R.A.F.V.R.; cloth wings for RAF; medal letter from Buckingham Palace to Flying Officer Leonard Knight, D.F.C. and four tunic buttons.

Frederick William O'Gorman. Born 08Jul1891. Joined the Indian Police 02Jul1913. Highly decorated during a lengthy and eventful career, O'Gorman was eventually appointed Inspector General of Police, Province of Bombay in 1945. Died 05Jan1949 London. Note that his brother Michael A.O'Gorman was awarded the KPM 01Jan1923 and a Bar to his KPM 01Jan1926.

KPM Gazette of India 01Jan1924 'While serving as District Superintendent of Police in the Bijapur District, Mr O'Gorman was required to undertake operations against a dangerous gang of Berad dacoits which had broken out of jail and for nine months had been terrorising the countryside. Mr O'Gorman initiated a well thought out campaign and it was entirely due to his organising ability and untiring tenacity that his plans ended in success. Mr O'Gorman was himself twice under fire during the progress of these operations and it was in no small measure due to his personal influence that the gang was exterminated. Since his transfer from Bijapur to the District of Kaira, Mr O'Gorman has been successful in breaking up another dangerous gang of dacoits. His services have been recognised by the Government of Bombay on both the occasions'.

First Bar to KPM Gazette of India 01Jan1930 'At the Ganpati celebrations at Surat in September 1928 widespread and frenzied rioting, which lasted for 24 hours and in the course of which numerous cold-blooded murders were committed, took place between Muhammadans and Hindus in spite of the most careful precautions. Throughout these disturbances Mr O'Gorman had numerous personal encounters with infuriated rioters armed with lethal weapons and displayed the highest courage in dispersing them. His spirited action, resource and organising ability were largely responsible for bringing the public disorder in a populous city like Surat under control in so short a space of time. This was accomplished without using firearms except on an occasion when the Police were obliged to fire in their own defence and killed one man'.

Second Bar to KPM Gazette of India 01Jan1936 'On the night of the 23rd January 1935, a Sikh of Poona City shot dead a Mussalman and an Arab woman. Mr O'Gorman was summoned to the scene where he found that the Sikh had ensconced himself with a B.L. gun in a strong position on the top storey of a large building, occupied by a number of men, women and children, from which he commanded the common staircase. The Sikh threatened to shoot anyone who approached and to have rushed the staircase would almost inevitably led to a heavy loss of life. Having drawn a cordon round the building, Mr O'Gorman with a party of armed policemen occupied a room at the top of an opposite house from which rifles were trained on the house where the Sikh was hiding. It was of importance that the Sikh should either be made to surrender or be rendered harmless by shooting; for any ineffective action by Police would probably have resulted in the Sikh firing indiscriminately, and causing several casualties. The Sikh, however, did not expose himself, and subsequent attempts by Mr O'Gorman and a Sikh priest who arrived on the scene, who both addressed the murderer from the front of the house merely elicited a determined reply from the Sikh to the effect that he would never surrender, and would shoot anyone who came near him. Finally however the Sikh told the priest to bring up the 'Saheb'. Mr O'Gorman, thereupon, accompanied the priest to the top storey. There he discovered a passage leading to a room where the Sikh stood with his gun. In front lay the body of one of the murdered persons, and stepping over this, Mr O'Gorman entered the room, calling out that he was unarmed, and asking the Sikh to surrender, which he did. He had six live cartridges in his possession. The cool and patient manner in which Mr O'Gorman handled the situation undoubtedly prevented further loss of life. He displayed admirable personal courage, and power of leadership in himself incurring the great risk of going unarmed up the stairs to confront the armed murderer'.

He lost the two officers he had with him soon after the attack started and he also had to take over command of 'B' Company which had lost all its officers. He showed great skill in controlling the two companies and by his absolute disregard for personal safety and aggressive tactics and splendid coolness set a magnificent example which inspired everyone with absolute confidence.'

MID LG 28Dec1917. OBE LG 16Apr1942 'Major H.T.Allan, M.C., has held the appointment of Brigade Major during the whole of the time the Brigade has been in the Fortress. He has at all times displayed a calm, cool courage that has been an inspiration to the staff, and the success of the Brigade is largely due to his skill and resourceful handling of the many difficult situations that have arisen. He has made wide and deep personal reconnaissances under fire and the knowledge gained has been reflected in his orders, materially assisting in the success of the many operations the Brigade has undertaken. Despite long and sleepless nights his cheerful courage and undoubted ability has earned for him the respect of all three C.Os, and those of the many units that have been under command at various times'.

MC LG 1/1/17, p.44, 'Sanday, William Henry, Captain, 4th Australian Pioneer Battalion, his work has been consistently good always and he has commanded his Company throughout the operations on the Somme in August and September 1916 with marked ability and gallantry.'

Belgian Croix de Guerre, recommendation 24/12/17, 'Major William Henry Sanday MC as Second-in-Command of the 4th Australian Pioneer Battalion this Officer did excellent service in all the arduous work undertaken by his unit during the operations at Messines and Wyschaete 9 June 1917, and later East of Ypres and Paschendales Ridge in September and October 1917. Major Sanday's initiative, personality, and technical knowledge all contributed in a marked manner to the successful issue of the work of the Battalion, and he is well deserving of recognition.'

DSO LG 1/1/19 p.21, 'Sanday, William Henry, Temporary Lieutenant Colonel, 3rd Australian Pioneer Battalion, for conspicuous ability, initiative, resourcefulness and devotion to duty from 25th February to 17th September 1918. During the recent operations from Hamel to Roisel in August and September 1918, Colonel Sanday displayed tireless energy, and an enthusiasm which permeated the whole of his Unit. On the 23rd August 1918, he carefully organised an attack on Le Neuville and captured it. He proved himself a very gallant Officer.'

DFC LG 4/4/1944, p.1552, position 1, CAG 13/4/1944, p. 804, position 1, Citation: Flight Lieutenant Scherf has completed many sorties at night during which he has attacked a variety of targets with much success. This officer has at all times displayed exceptional keenness and his example of courage and determination have been worthy of great praise. He has destroyed four enemy aircraft at night.

Bar to DFC LG 12/5/1944, p. 2185, position 1, CAG 18/5/1944, p. 1027 position 6, Citation: Since being awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, this officer has taken part in numerous sorties and has continued to display the highest qualities of gallantry and skill. Towards the end of February 1944, he flew the leading aircraft of two detailed for a sortie far in enemy occupied territory. During the operation three enemy aircraft were shot down and three others damaged on the ground. During another sortie over France in April 1944, Flight Lieutenant Scherf destroyed two enemy aircraft in the air and damaged three others on the ground at an airfield. These 2 sorties were a fitting climax to an outstanding tour. This officer has destroyed at least 9 enemy aircraft, successes which pay an excellent tribute to his great fighting qualities and resolution.

DSO LG 27/6/1944, p.3041, position 1, CAG 6/7/1944, p. 1349, position 2, Citation: On two occasions in May, 1944, Squadron Leader Scherf led a section of Mosquito aircraft on daylight sorties over well defended areas far into Germany. During these two flights a number of enemy aircraft were destroyed of which this officer shot down six, and he also destroyed three on the ground. His successes are a splendid tribute to his great skill, enterprise and fearlessness. Squadron Leader Scherf has set an example of the highest order.

Flight Lieutenant H. D. Cleveland (RCAF), Flying Officer Colin Finlayson (RCAF) and Flight Lieutenant Charles Scherf (RAAF)

Squadron Leader

Charles Curnow Scherf DSO, DFC and Bar:-

Charles 'Charlie' Curnow Scherf was born to Charles Henry and Susan Jane Scherf on 17 May 1917 into a well known and respected grazing family who lived on a farm called "Big Ben" at Emmaville, a small community in the Glen Innes District of north-western New South Wales. Naturally Charles was inducted into all the usual farm activities, was a keen horseman which would later stand him in good stead when he joined the local militia unit, the 12th Light Horse Regiment (New England Light Horse) being promoted to Corporal. He was a natural and outstanding athlete and while still a school-boy he was a prominent rugby league centre and was one of the stars of the Glen Innes-13 and an idol of the crowd when he played in inter-district competition matches. He was also an extraordinary rifle shot and perhaps this had something to do with his later annihilation of enemy planes whenever he came upon them.

On his father's side his ancestry traces back to Germany, the family migrating to Australia in 1855. His second name of Curnow comes from his mother, Susan Jane Curnow, a member of the Curnow family which originally went from France to England and had a proud tradition of big-sea captains in West Cornwall.

In September 1941, Charles enlisted and was trained under the Empire Air Training Scheme. He was then sent to England for further training at the Mosquito Operational Training Unit. During this time he became friends with a Canadian who became his observer. The Canadian remarked that he thought it would be great if Charlie could fly with his unit and thus it came about that he was posted to No 418 Squadron, The City of Edmonton Squadron, the only Australian in an all-Canadian unit operating out of England. The 418 operated Mosquitoes on 'fighter night intruder' missions, the aim being to intercept enemy night fighters or to bomb enemy airfields to prevent fighters taking off.

Over the course of the next six-months he gained valuable experience flying 'intruder' missions over Europe but did not encounter many Huns and failed to score. This was soon to change however and on 27 January 1944 he bagged his first victim when he shot down a FW-200 near Bourges. After the mission he wrote in his log book, "Grand day" One Hun & one FW. 200 for self'. His next victim was taken out on 19 February without even firing a shot. When he went in pursuit of a German aircraft Charlie was such a good pilot that he literally dogged the German pilot to death. His pursuit was so relentless that the German lost control and crashed near Florennes in Belgium. Five days later he destroyed another two when he shot down two JU-88s over their own airfield.

On 26 February 1944 flying with his observer, Flying Officer Colin Finlayson, and accompanied by another Mosquito piloted by a Canadian, Flight Lieutenant H D Cleveland, they encountered the strangest aircraft they had ever seen towing two gliders. It was dubbed by them as the 'monstrosity'. It looked like two aircraft flying side-by-side joined together by one main plane and fitted with a fifth engine at the join. This turned out to be the HE-111Z which was in effect two 111 H-6s joined together with a connecting wing and fifth engine to make a powerful and gigantic tug to tow Gotha gliders. Each pilot destroyed one of the gliders and then they both launched attacks on the 'monstrosity'. Scherf set two starboard engines on fire, the Canadian lit up the middle and then Scherf dealt the final blow when he attacked the port side, destroying it. Each pilot was credited with half a kill.

When Scherf's tour of thirty missions came to an end with his tally standing at 7 kills he was transferred to the role of Intruder Controller at Air Defence Great Britain (A.D.G.B.) a duty he was not happy doing since he was definitely a 'man of action'. Anxious to get back into operational flying, Scherf asked Sir Charles Portal a number of times if he could fly day-time intruder operations alone but was refused. Finally, at the start of April, Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory and Portal agreed to let him 'have one last trip'.

He plotted the trip out himself and on 5 April he and fellow 418 Squadron pilot 'Johnnie' Johnson piloted their Mosquitoes across over 1,000 miles of enemy occupied territory flying much of the time at zero level right under the big guns and this was to prove the start of a new phase to the air war. From then on, the Luftwaffe suffered very high losses. On this mission, Scherf earned himself the nickname, 'Last Trip' Scherf. He wrote in his log book, 'Very braced off at A.D.G.B. so went on a Day Ranger. Proceeded to destroy 2 a/c at Lyon an ME110 & FW58 & proceeded to St Yan left 2 HE-111s burning on ground. Pleasant day.'

On 2 May he made another 'Last Trip' this time to the Baltic and North Germany with the accompanying aircraft piloted by Canadian, Flying Officer 'Johnnie' Caine. Both pilots had a field day although Caine's aircraft was badly damaged so he had to return home prematurely. After ensuring that his comrade was OK, Scherf went on to attack Griefswald alone shooting down a JU-86 and then destroying a HE-111 on the ground before setting off for home via Rostock where he destroyed another parked HE-111. Once again his log book entry shows his disenchantment with being out of the action at A.D.G.B. when he wrote, 'Very pleasant day off from A.D.G.B. duties'.

On 16 May 'Last Trip' Scherf was off again on another last trip, and this was to be nothing short of spectacular. It was back to the Baltic and North Germany. This time, he encountered a HE-111 over the sea and sent it down in flames. Over Kubitzer, he and his companion Mosquito split up and each chased a JU-87 with Scherf's newest victim going down in flames after three bursts from Charlie's guns. Not long after they came upon several assorted aircraft in the airfield circuit at Parrow. Scherf immediately launched a head-on attack on a HE-177 and shot it down and then strafed two Dornier 18s moored in a creek, one exploded and the other was badly damaged. He was chased by flak as he came up under two JU-88s in formation, the first of which broke up in the air as he fired. At the same time his plane shuddered as it took hits from a 20mm flak battery. Undeterred he pressed on with his attack pursuing the second JU-88 until he shot it down. In the space of fifteen minutes he had destroyed five in the air and one on the ground. On the way home while strafing a convoy his observer, Flying Officer Colin Finlayson, was hit in the right side by flak and then near Heliogoland a potential disaster arose when he collided with a flock of seagulls severely damaging the plane. In spite of the damage he was able to call on his piloting skills and get back to base safely.

This last trip confirmed Charles Scherf as a legendary Mosquito pilot. In a newspaper report on the Mosquito, The Evening Standard Air Correspondent, Major Oliver Stewart, wrote, 'As a night fighter and an intruder it has been markedly successful and as an all-round fighter it set the seal to its fame on the afternoon of May 16 when one Mosquito, flown by Squadron Leader C. Scherf, shot down 5 enemy aircraft and damaged 2 others during a single sortie.'

It was on this mission that Charles Scherf earned his place among the top flight of Mosquito pilots and he became the only British pilot to surpass the 1941-43 combat record of the Spitfire aces, the late Squadron Leaders, 'Bluey' Truscott DFC and Hugo Throssell Armstrong DFC. He was described as the 'true 1944 version of a fighter-pilot able to employ a technique utterly different from the high flying fighters of 2 years ago. Flying in the neighbourhood of 400 mph at zero feet he strikes with the wicked surprise of lightning. His Mosquito has run amok among German flying schools in supposedly safe areas. Hundreds of miles inside Europe he has floored transport aircraft.'

This last trip turned out to be Charles' farewell mission. His last flight on 8 July 1944 was a routine one in a Spitfire. He recorded in his log book, 'Last flight in a great country. Beat up A.D.G.B.' During his tours he flew 38 operations for 50,000 operational miles and never received a scratch. He destroyed more German planes in a single mission than any other intruder pilot. He was one of the most decorated pilots and was the first to organise long-range Mosquito lightning raids in daylight and he was the only non-Canadian member of the British based Canadian intruder fighting group - 418. On his departure from the City of Edmonton Squadron the CO wrote in Charlie's log book, 'An exceptional pilot with outstanding fighting qualities, A. Barker W/Cdr, 418 Sqdn R.C.A.F.' By this time Charles had been recognised with awards three times, once each month from April to June in 1944. He received the Distinguished Flying Cross on 4 April, a Bar to the Distinguished Flying Cross on 12 May and was admitted as a Companion of the Distinguished Service Order on 27 June. A magnificent achievement and worthy recognition for a 'wizard pilot' as the Canadian press described him.

He returned to Australia where he was feted in his hometown of Emmaville however his greatest joy was to see his wife Florence and his two children, Maureen and particularly Rosemary who he had never seen because she was born after he left home for war service. A special tribute function was staged at the Oddfellows' Hall at which he was presented with a magnificent tribute scroll signed by all present. Many speeches were made and the draft of the tribute document was read to him before the presentation. Now back home in Australia, Charlie was posted to No 5 Operational Training Unit based at RAAF William Town Base as Chief Instructor on the Mosquito. On 15 October 1944 he wrote in his log book, 'At 5 O.T.U. Australia "Worst Luck".' He also tested aircraft and was placed on flying duties at 2 Aircraft Depot at RAAF Richmond. On 11 April 1945 he discharged from the RAAF and transferred to the Reserves in order to resume his civilian occupation.

After his discharge, Charlie returned to the land. He had invested money he had saved into Merino sheep but unfortunately, the Glen Innes area was hit by drought and even when relief came to other areas, it continued very severely around Glen Innes until 1947 making life very tough for farmers. Post war, Charles experienced bad memories of the friends he had lost and of the Germans he had killed even having bad dreams in which he would see 'his German victims who seemed to march across his bed at night'.

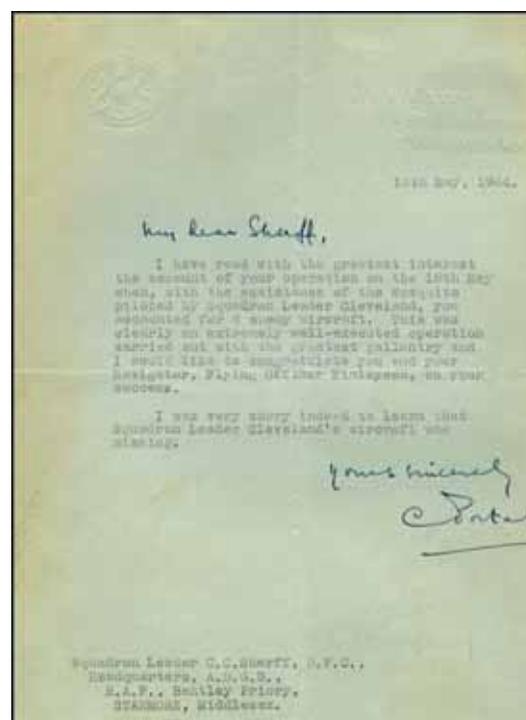

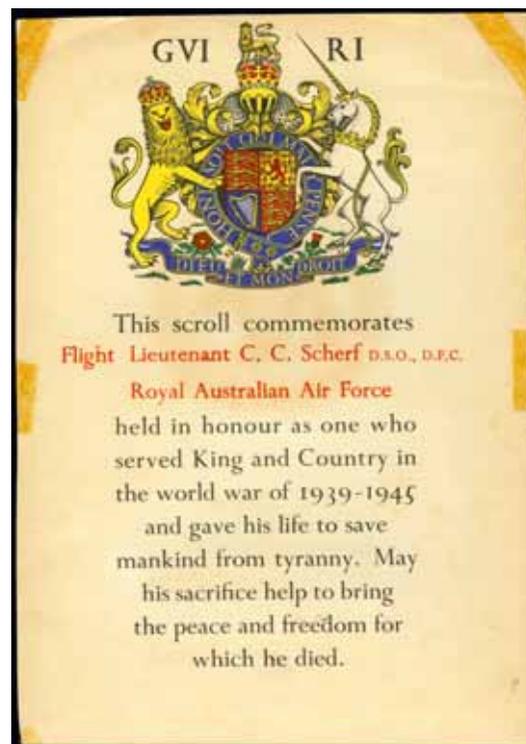

Charles missed his flying companions and the friends he had made during his wartime service, many in very high office. His son, in fact, was named Mallory in tribute to Air Chief Marshall Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, AOC in Command of Allied Expeditionary Air Force. Charles wrote under a photo of Mallory, 'my friend and advisor Leigh-Mallory. Our son Mallory is called after this fine gentleman.'

In July 1949 disaster struck when Charles was killed after his automobile failed to take the bend of a dirt road and hit a tree. It is almost beyond belief that someone who had been in perilous situations on so many occasions during combat sorties should meet his fate in such a senseless manner. People were shocked and saddened not only in Australia but also in Canada and England. The accolades for his outstanding attributes came from far and wide. Articles were written in newspapers in tribute to him however, perhaps, the most fitting words came in a hand-written letter addressed to the Mayor of Glen Innes signed on behalf of all members of Charlie's old squadron, the 418th, The City of Edmonton Squadron. In part it says,

'He was both respected and admired by all who served with him, above or below him in rank. Scherf who was far too modest, probably never mentioned half of what he did; probably never discussed his great friendship with famous wartime Air Force leaders like Sir Charles Portal, Sir Leigh-Mallory, Sir Rodney Hill, etc., men who knew his worth and respected him as a son. Sir Charles Portal at a great dinner tendered in Scherf's honour in the Savoy Hotel by RAF leaders and men in July, 1944, said in his speech to Scherf:- "Charles I want you to know I love you as a son, I admire you as a son, and I believe you are the most outstanding airman I've ever known. When you are in a plane you seem to be the soul of it." All present at that dinner will never forget the excellent and splendid praise showered on him. For sheer courage and determination we never met his equal, and in our hard and trying times he had that saving sense of humour. Yet Scherf's splendid and scientific ideas on wartime flying, his pioneering of daylight intrusion work and his practical suggestions are used today by all airmen of the world. We hope the people of your community where he was reared; dedicate a fitting and useful memorial to one of the greatest flyers and heroes who lived on this earth.'

At his funeral two Mustangs from Williamtown circled for fifteen minutes as his casket left the church and then as mourners gathered at the graveside the Mustangs came over with wings dipped. Just as the ceremony was finishing, a Mosquito from Archerfield made a few wide circles and as the casket was lowered the Mosquito, with one motor stalled, tipped a wing and flew over the open grave in a final and memorable salute to a man who had contributed largely to the fame of the Air Force.

Charles Curnow Scherf holds position nine in the ranks of Australia's air aces and he is one of the pilots selected by Lex McAulay for his book, Six Aces, which recreates the life of six of Australia's best fighter pilots.

Dr Raoul Cardamatis Family Collection of Medals

Dr Cardamatis (name changed from Kardamati) was born in 1889. He was the son of a Greek university professor and his German wife. When WWI commenced he was studying medicine at Bonn University in Germany and was recruited into the German Army as a doctor. Once buried in a collapsed trench for two days, he was twice wounded and on one of these occasions his legs were damaged when he was blown up. Eventually he became a prisoner-of-war when his location was captured. It was then that he came into contact with Australian soldiers and liked them so he decided to migrate to Australia because of the post war upheaval in Europe. Upon arrival he re-did his medical training to qualify as a doctor according to the standards of the Australian Medical Board, completing the three year course in two years. Initially he set up a practice at Marrickville but later became a Macquarie Street specialist in the field of psychology. He was appointed a doctor for the New South Wales Police Force and was a doctor for the United Nations in Geneva. A man of many talents, he also produced plays for the Independent Theatre together with Warwick Fairfax. In 1944 a portrait of Dr Cardamatis by W.H.Neal was one of the finalists in the Archibald Prize competition. When Dr Cardamatis died in 1959 he had an impressive collection of family awards. These are offered here for sale in one lot.

WWI dog tag, for L.C. Maygar VC, DSO, VD, in aluminium, impressed naming 'CAPT / MAYGAR L.C. / 4. A.L.H. / C.E.' At the top is scratched MAJOR, at the left side just above MAYGAR is scratched Lt. and at the right is scratched Col. Together with a silver religious medal with a scene of the Holy Family on the obverse and on the reverse in relief is the title 'Divins Exiles / de / Matarieh / Protegez - Nous' (Mother of Divine Exiles Protect Us) with both items attached to a long, thin, silver chain with fob-style fittings. These items form the central feature of a professionally framed tribute that includes restrikes of the Australian Rising Sun badge at the top, the colour patches of the 4ALH and 8ALH, both with the metal A for ANZAC badge attached, one at each side and below this is a biography of Lt-Col Maygar VC, DSO, VD calligraphied onto a parchment at the left, the dog tag, medal and chain in the centre and on the right is a coloured photo of the colonel being a copy of a coloured portrait photo by Krystii Melaine that hangs in the RAAC Tank Museum at Puckapunyal in Victoria.

Lt-Colonel Leslie Cecil Maygar, VC, DSO, VD * Awarded VC in the South African War for his brave actions at Geelhoutboom in Natal on 23 November 1901 serving as a Lieutenant with 5th VMR. * First Victorian to be awarded VC. * Last VC awarded to an Australian for the Boer War. * Mentioned-in-Despatches for service in South African War. * Commanded the last party to pull out of the trenches during the evacuation from Gallipoli. * Awarded DSO on 4 June 1917 for his gallant leadership of 8th LHR during the campaign in the Sinai. * Mentioned-in-Despatches three times in WWI, once in 1916 and twice in 1917. * Awarded Colonial Auxiliary Forces Decoration on 24 August 1917. * In command of the reserve force at the Battle of Beersheba. * Severely injured on the day of the Battle of Beersheba when a German aeroplane attacked General Chauvel's Divisional Headquarters dropping two bombs, one of which exploded almost under Lt-Col Maygar and his horse. * Arm was amputated at 65th Casualty Clearing Station at Karm but on 1 November 1917 complications in the form of a sudden haemorrhage set in and he died. * Buried at Palestine 1 Beersheba War Cemetery, Israel.

Leslie Cecil Maygar was born on 26 May 1871 at Dean Station, Kilmore, Victoria into a family of graziers who had emigrated from Bristol, England. He was educated at Alexandra and Kilmore State Schools and privately. His father and three brothers owned Strathearn Station at Euroa, a small town in the north-east of Victoria about halfway between Melbourne and Albury. Living on a station, of course, Leslie was an expert horseman and so he joined the Victorian Mounted Rifles in March 1891.

He was among the first volunteers for the war in South Africa with the Boers but his departure overseas was delayed because of a dental condition that required treatment. He finally departed with the 5th (Mounted Rifles) Contingent arriving at Cape Town in March 1901. His contingent was in continuous action for the ensuing months until it was transferred to the colony of Natal in August. It was here, at Geelhoutboom, on the morning of 23rd November 1901 that Lt Maygar was awarded the Victoria Cross for rescuing a man, Pte A.J. Short, whose horse had been shot out from under him, all the time under very heavy enemy fire. The VC was presented to him by Lord Kitchener. Before leaving South Africa for home in March 1902 he was also Mentioned-in-Despatches.

He returned to work on the land at the family property but continued his military service with the 8th (later 16th) Light Horse, Victorian Mounted Rifles. He was promoted to Captain in 1905 and when World War I broke out he enlisted in the A.I.F. being appointed Captain in the 4th ALH and served on Gallipoli where he was promoted to Major. On 17 October 1915 he was appointed Temporary Lt-Colonel and Commanding Officer of 8ALH. This rank promotion was made permanent on 13 December 1915. During the evacuation of troops from Gallipoli, Maygar was left in command of a party of forty men with instructions to hold the trenches at all costs until 2.30 a.m. and thus this party was the last to pull out of the trenches.

Following on from Gallipoli, Lt-Col Maygar continued to gallantly lead the 8ALH during its service in the Sinai and Palestine. It was during this campaign that Maygar's inspiring and gallant leadership earned him an award of the Distinguished Service Order in June 1917. When Brig General T.R. Roysten was invalided home, Maygar was appointed as Acting Brig Gen to take command of 3rd LH Bde. On 29 October 1917 he returned to command the 8ALH with his unit placed in reserve during the Battle of Beersheba on 31 October 1917. Toward's the end of the day the 8th was ordered back to General Chauvel's Desert Mounted Corps Headquarters. While there, two German aeroplanes flew over and dropped bombs, one of which exploded almost underneath Maygar and his horse. The horse bolted with the badly wounded Maygar on board and by the time help reached him, he was virtually beyond saving because he had lost a lot of blood. He was taken to the hospital at Karm for treatment but, as the result of his injuries, Lt-Col Maygar died on 1 November 1917.

A case of his belongings was despatched to the family on 28 December 1917 and amongst the items listed was one disc, one medallion, one chain and these are the items now being offered for auction. These three items were given by the family at the Euroa property to the owner of the adjoining property, a family friend, as a remembrance of Leslie Maygar. Many years later they were acquired by a local trader. They then passed through a few hands before coming into possession of the present owner.

Lt-Col Maygar's medals are housed in the Hall of Valour in the Australian War Memorial, Canberra. The items offered here, his most personal of all wartime possessions, are unique and of the utmost rarity. Together with research.

John Robert Francis Wild, known as Frank Wild, (1873-1939), was an important figure in Antarctic exploration. He was a member of the following expeditions, British Antarctic Expedition 1902-04, Sir Ernest Shackleton's Furthest South Expedition in Nimrod 1907-09, Australian Antarctic Expedition 1911-14, Imperial Trans-Antarctic Expedition 1914-16. He saw war service as a Temporary Lieutenant in RNVR and apart from his Polar Medal and WWI service medals he was awarded a CBE in 1920 and was a recipient of numerous other medals relating to his Antarctic service. The name on the case is incorrectly spelt but this adds to the mystery. Was it a gift? Or, was it issued to him and the naming incorrectly spelt by the equipment engraver? Together with research.
