Part excerpt from 'The Sydney Morning Herald' 11 April 1931 'Congregationalism, Its Approaching Centenary' by Frank Walker F.R.A.H.S. 'Those of our denomination in Australia who are looking forward to the centenary of Congregationalism in 1933 will be interested in an illustration of the medal that was struck at the time of the jubilee in 1883, which has only lately come to light. As will be seen, it is of conventional design, the central figure being intended for Moses, the lawgiver. The seven stars surrounding the upper part of the figure represent the six colonies of Australasia and New Zealand, which at that time was included. The bowl of burning incense and palm leaves have a scriptural meaning, but the nature of the plant on the right of the tablet is somewhat obscure.'

Richards was waiting for his tram, and was standing on the footpath, near the intersection of Market Street, when he saw a horse, attached to a lorry, bolting in an easterly direction along Collins Street. Richards ran onto the roadway and swung himself onto the lorry. He leaned over the front of the lorry and had to reach down three times before he grasped the reins and managed to pull the horse up about half way between Queen and Elizabeth Streets. The traffic was very heavy, and several collisions were narrowly averted.

The two men were crossing the river in a small boat and when in mid-stream, about 250 feet from either bank, Gardiner, who could not swim, overbalanced and fell into the water. Eastwood, fully clothed and wearing heavy boots, jumped in and swam to Gardiner, who struggled violently, and Eastwood had great trouble in dealing with him. A strong westerly wind was blowing and the water was rough, with a strong current. Eastwood began to swim with Gardiner towards the wharf; Gardiner was still struggling and when 90 feet from the wharf Walter Tullberg jumped into the river and swam to them with a rope and pulled them to the wharf.
